TAFT INSULTED BY CANTONESE

Chinese Viceroy Must Apologize for Posters He Has on Display.

GUNBOAT ON GUARD

Although Advised to Remain Away Party Will Visit City Under Protection.

RESULT MAY BE INTERESTING

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

HONGKONG, Sept. 3.—The transport Logan, with Secretary of War Taft and party on board, arrived at 10 o'clock this morning. All members of the party are well. Owing to the unpleasant demonstrations against America and the display of posters in Canton, there were lengthy arguments on the Logan as to whether the party should go to Canton as planned.

Consul General Bragg advised that the visit be not made. Secretary Taft, however, decided to go on at 9 o'clock tonight. He will arrive at Canton in the morning. Only men will be guests at the banquet which will be given by the viceroy, who will be absent. Interesting developments are likely to result as an outcome of Secretary Taft's visit.

By order of the British admiral, the transport bearing Secretary Taft and his party, including Miss Alice Roosevelt, will be convoyed by a gunboat when it leaves here for the trip up West river.

Consul General Lay has demanded an apology from the viceroy for the insulting posters displayed at Canton which resulted in the first decision of Secretary Taft to abandon his visit to that city. The viceroy has given ample assurances that the leaders will be arrested and given severe punishment.

Secretary Taft and Miss Roosevelt were entertained today at a luncheon by Sir Matthew Nathan, governor of Hongkong. Gen. Corbin and staff will return the calls of the military and naval commanders.

Miss Alice Roosevelt, having obtained the consent of Secretary Taft, left at 3 o'clock this afternoon on the United States gunboat Callao for Canton on a visit to Consul General Lay. Miss Roosevelt was accompanied by Miss Boardman, Miss McMillan, Mrs. Newlands and Representatives Longworth and Gillette. They will return to Hongkong on Tuesday.

BIG AUTOMOBILE DASHES INTO WALL

Gets Away from Its Fair Chauffeur, but No One Is Seriously Hurt.

With a crash that could be heard for several blocks, a huge, triple-seated automobile owned by Gottlieb C. Dellenbach of 913 Irwin avenue, Allegheny, dashed into the wall of a house at Ridge and Marion avenues, Allegheny, yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The automobile was damaged. The house was not.

The spindle of the right front wheel of the car was broken, the front of the machine was smashed beyond recognition and the machinery was seriously damaged. The occupants of the car, Dr. Dellenbach, his wife and daughter, Miss Hester, were shaken up and but slightly bruised.

Miss Dellenbach was acting as chauffeur as the car came down Ridge avenue at a lively pace. When about to turn into Marion avenue several ugly holes in the asphalt pavement were encountered. In going over these Miss Dellenbach was jolted so that the steering lever of the machine left her hands and the car took its own course and attempted suicide. The machine shot over the curb and across the pavement into the wall of the house before control could be regained. Mr. and Mrs. Dellenbach, who were in the rear seat, were thrown out backward, while Miss Dellenbach struck her head against the house, but the heavy rim of her auto cap saved her from serious injury. The machine was hauled away on a large platform wagon.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—(Copyrighted Cable.)—It is reported from Tien Tsin that the discontent in Japan over the concessions granted to Russia in the peace treaty is so deep that it is feared that revolution will break out throughout the empire. This movement, it is declared, has manifested itself in Tokyo. All cables are cut.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 3.—Fire at Adrianople Saturday caused enormous damage. Seven thousand houses were destroyed in the Greek, Armenian, Bulgarian and Jewish quarters. There were many victims. ROYAL ARCANUM WILL NOT CHANGE NEW RATE

Supreme Council Decides to Let It Stand and Better Feeling Exists.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

PUT-IN-BAY, Sept. 3.—By a vote of 63 for and 58 against, the supreme council of the Royal Arcanum in session here decided not to change the new rates.

No meeting of the supreme council was held today. Probably the final meeting of the session will be tomorrow morning, when the proposition to repeal Options B, C and D will be reported. Although protesting delegates refused to be quoted until they have reported to their committees, it is thought they are less strongly opposed to the new rates than on coming here, although the feeling that they should not have been put forth without any notice to members still exists.

The vote by states on the substitute resolution to rescind was as follows:

Nay—New Jersey, 4; Massachusetts, 5; Georgia, 1; New York, 8; North Carolina, 1; Connecticut, 1; Pennsylvania, 7; Quebec, 1; Tennessee, 1; Virginia, 3; Michigan, 2; Rhode Island, 2; Missouri, 4; Wisconsin, 2; Colorado, 1; District of Columbia, 2; Nebraska, 1; Illinois, 3; Minnesota, 2; Maryland, 4; California, 1; Washington, 1; New Hampshire, 1; Maine, 1; Kentucky, 1. Total, 63.

Yea—New Jersey, 2; Massachusetts, 6; Georgia, 1; Indiana, 2; Maritime Provinces, 1; New York, 14; Ohio, 8; North Carolina, 1; Connecticut, 1; Ontario, 2; Pennsylvania, 3; Quebec, 1; Tennessee, 1; Iowa, 1. Total, 58.

It required 73 votes to repeal the new rates. About 20 representatives voted for repeal under instructions from their grand councils.

BAIL JUMPER'S LAWYER GETS HIM ACQUITTED

Peculiar Result in Westmoreland County Trial in Which Defendant Disappears.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

GREENSBURG, PA., Sept. 3.—The result of the trial of Dr. A. Witman, charged by the Monessen Medical society with practicing medicine without a license, was a surprise. He was acquitted and the costs were placed on the Monessen Medical society.

When the case was called Dr. Witman was not to be found. A short postponement was asked by the accused doctor's attorney and it was granted. Still the defendant did not show up. The prosecuting attorney insisted that his bail bond of $400 in cash be forfeited, but the doctor's attorney declared that he would try the case without the defendant, and he won the case in the face of a great amount of evidence.

His chief argument was that his client would not have put up $400 forfeit if he had been guilty. Dr. Witman has not been found to tell him of the good news. His attorney can lift the bail bond, it is said.

BOMB EXPLODES AMONG MANY MERRY MAKERS

Scores of Wounded Fill Great Square of Barcelona, Victims of Anarchists.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

BARCELONA, Sept. 3.—A bomb exploded with terrific force this afternoon on the Marine parade, which was thronged with holiday makers.

A panic ensued and the air was rent with the shrieks and groans of the victims, who numbered between 50 and 60, including one woman killed and five persons mortally wounded. The bomb was conical in shape and was covered with cement.

The perpetrator of the outrage is unknown. One witness states that early this morning a child was seen to deposit a bomb at the foot of a tree, while another version is that the bomb was placed at the foot of a tree this afternoon and that the man who was seen to place it there was injured by its premature explosion.

A workman, covered with blood, while running away from the scene was pursued by a mob who believed him to be responsible for the outrage, and being caught, was nearly lynched. The man was taken to a hospital, where he denied he had exploded the bomb.

CRIPPLE TAKES LONG CHANCE TO SAVE COINS

Excursionists Get Fright When Youth Scrambling for Money Falls Over Lock Walls.

People on the big excursion steamer Francis J. Torrance were given a severe fright last evening, while the steamer was going through lock No. 1, by seeing a man fall over the lock walls into the water in the rear of the steamer. The steamer was returning to the wharf at 8:30 o'clock and, as usual, a big crowd of boys and young men gathered at the side of the lock to scramble for coins thrown by passengers, while the steamer was being put through.

During the scramble George Minger, aged 21, of Vickroy street, and possessed of only one leg, was pushed into the water. The passengers screamed with fright, but Minger held to his crutch and kept himself afloat.

Special Officer Philip Eckert, one of the guards on duty at the swimming pool, ran to the lock and threw Minger a rope and he was pulled out. Minger did not call for aid while in the water, but when he was placed safely on dry land he swung his crutch under him and spat three nickels out into his hand, and the crowd cheered him for keeping his mouth shut and saving his coins.

ADE SATIRIZES CARNEGIE.

His New Play, "The Bad Samaritan," Deals With a Library That Was Not Wanted.

NEW YORK Sept. 3.—(Special.)—Andrew Carnegie has fallen a victim to George Ade's satire. The laird of Skibo Castle has unwittingly furnished material for the humorist's new play, "The Bad Samaritan," which will have its first representation at Washington tomorrow evening.

Mr. Carnegie's free library was not welcome in some communities whose inhabitants paused long enough to figure the cost of the eternal maintenance, and the clever playwright has used the free library scheme to turn a point in his satire on misdirected philanthropy.

Mutineers Transferred to Army.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 3.—One thousand sailors who participated in the mutinous disorders at Libau and in the Black sea, will be transferred to the army and be sent to the far east to serve in the army of occupation.

MIKADO SENDS WARM THANKS

Emperor of Japan Cables His Appreciation to Mr. Roosevelt.

SIGNIFICANT WORDS

Message Declares That Permanent Peace Is Secured for the Far East.

PASTOR PRAISES PRESIDENT

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Sept. 3.—President Roosevelt today received from the emperor of Japan warm thanks for his "disinterested and unremitting efforts in the interests of peace and humanity," and an expression of the Japanese emperor's "grateful appreciation of the distinguished part" the president has taken in the establishment of peace in the far east.

The cablegram, which was received from the emperor personally, follows:

TOKYO, Sept. 3, 1905.

The President: I have received with gratification your message of congratulations conveyed through our plenipotentiaries and thank you warmly for it. To your disinterested and unremitting efforts in the interests of peace and humanity, I attach the high value which is their due and assure you of my grateful appreciation of the distinguished part you have taken in the establishment of peace based upon principles essential to the permanent welfare and tranquility of the far east.

(Signed) MUTSUHITO.

A Significant Sentence.

The cablegram from the Japanese emperor puts an end to the rumors that the emperor was dissatisfied with the terms finally concluded by his plenipotentiaries with those of the emperor of Russia. He accords President Roosevelt full credit for the part he took in bringing about peace "upon principles essential to the permanent welfare and tranquility of the far east." The concluding sentence of the cablegram is especially significant. It evidently voices the belief of the Japanese emperor that the treaty about to be concluded at Portsmouth will be for a permanent peace.

It can be said that the president has expressed no anxiety at the delay of the cablegram from the emperor of Japan. It was known here that the terms finally concluded at Portsmouth were dictated by the Japanese emperor himself, and that they could not be otherwise than satisfactory for him and his advisers. The delay in responding to the Japanese plenipotentiaries was due, it is surmised, to the desire of the emperor to be assured that the terms agreed upon would be incorporated into a treaty without the probability of a serious hitch. That assurance, it is said, was conveyed to the Japanese emperor last night upon the practical conclusion of the draft of the treaty. The cablegram to President Roosevelt today followed in natural course.

Treaty Nearly Ready.

Information reaching the president today from Portsmouth indicates that the treaty will be concluded formally and signed early this week, probably tomorrow or Tuesday. The substance of the treaty is being reduced to engrossed form, in two texts, English and French. As soon as this formality shall have been completed, the convention, so important not only to the two belligerent powers, but to the civilized world, will be signed by the plenipotentiaries of the two governments directly in interest and will pass into history as the treaty of Portsmouth.

President Roosevelt passed the greater part of the day at Sagamore Hill. He and Mrs. Roosevelt and some of the children attended morning services at Christ Episcopal church. Notwithstanding the tremendous wind and rainstorm which swept over this part of Long Island, beginning early today and continuing until the afternoon, the president and Mrs. Roosevelt sent the children home from church in a carriage and themselves walked the three miles to Sagamore Hill in the storm.

No official visitors were received during the day, although Representative Wadsworth of New York and Mrs. Wadsworth were house guests of the president and Mrs. Roosevelt.

The president has announced that he will devote the remainder of his sojourn at Sagamore Hill particularly to recreation, and that he will receive as few visitors as possible and will transact no business that is not of pressing im-

PRESIDENT WANTS NO TRIUMPHANT ENTRY

Mr. Roosevelt Will Discourage Attempt to Celebrate His Victory for Peace.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 3.—President Roosevelt will discourage the triumphant entry idea which certain District of Columbia officials have been planning for his return to Washington on September 30. Mr. Roosevelt feels that any attempt to celebrate his success in bringing Russia and Japan together at Portsmouth and in solving their problems for them would be in bad taste.

The plan to start a boom for his second nomination to the presidency based upon his triumph in world politics, a boom that is to override the war election promise never to run again, is extremely distasteful to the president. It takes him from the pedestal of humanity and plants him in the mud of personal politics. Whether or not he will ultimately withdraw his pledge of election, Mr. Roosevelt will not permit his admirers to lower the dignity of his position as peacemaker by making political capital of it on his return to Washington.

SOCIALISTS MAKE TROUBLE AS RESERVISTS MARCH OUT

Fire on Military and Many Innocent Persons Are Killed and Wounded.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

LIBAU, Sept. 3.—The departure of reservists Saturday night was marked by socialistic rioting in which ten persons were killed and 50 wounded.

The agitators fired from a house upon the military, who replied with a volley. The cavalry then charged, using their sabers on the crowd. A detachment of troops stormed the house from which the shots were fired. One policeman was killed and several soldiers were wounded. Twenty-one wounded persons were taken to the hospital.

The reservists did not anticipate that rioting would occur. They had just been entertained by the city and were accompanied by their wives and children. There were many innocent victims, women being included among them.

BROKE RECORD FOR A BATH.

Baltimoreans Hire Special Train to Whirl Them to the Seashore for Their Dip.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—(Special.)—Henry Pratt Janes and James Madison Thompson of Baltimore, widely known in club and social circles, engaged a special train to the Pennsylvania railroad early this morning and broke the speed record to Atlantic City, all for the avowed purpose of taking a bath.

At 12:55, exactly, the special shot out of the station. There was but one car and the locomotive and Mr. Janes and his friend were whirled into the Atlantic City station at just 2 o'clock, making the 76 miles in 65 minutes, which is record-breaking time. They returned tonight.

ORE STEAMER IS WRECKED

Five Lives Are Lost from a Vessel in Lake Superior.

ERIE WOMEN ABOARD

Persons Rescued Have Perilous Night in Small Boat During the Storm.

THE SEVONIA BREAKS IN TWO

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

ASHLAND, WIS., Sept. 3.—By the breaking in two and beaching of the steamer Sevonia in Lake Superior Friday evening, five lives were lost, 21 persons, including four women, were forced to drift about all night on the lake, while a half dozen sailors, including the captain, are still on the wreck tonight, when news of the disaster reached Ashland. The Sevonia was ore laden from Allouez to Erie, Pa., and ran ashore on York island at 6 o'clock Friday night, in a heavy northeaster, afterwards breaking in two at the fourth hatch and sinking.

Two boats were put off. One boat was in charge of the first engineer and contained besides him, Miss Jones and Mrs. S. F. Spence of Erie, Pa., Mrs. Chidsey of West Bay City, Mich.; Mrs. Wilson Phillips, Adams Fiden, Nick Fiden and C. H. Chidsey, two fishermen and one deck hand, all of Buffalo.

Suffered All Night.

Battling with waves all night, the occupants of this boat suffered terribly from cold and exposure, and several times the crew was almost forced to give up the struggle. When day broke, with land in sight, the party was in an exhausted condition, but reached shore after several attempts to land at Little Sand bay, where homesteaders took them to farmhouses two miles away. The engineer, with a homesteader, set out with a team for Bayfield, where they arrived at 4 o'clock today, after cutting a way through the forest, and reported the accident.

The tug Harrow, in command of Capt. Anderson, with a party of volunteer lifesavers on board, immediately set out from Bayfield for the wreck to rescue Capt. E. S. McDonald of Bishport, Pa., two mates, two wheelmen and one deckhand, who were left on the forward end of the partly submerged vessel when the boats put off.

The second boat, containing five men, has not been heard from, and it is believed it foundered in the heavy seas.

The Sevonia was seeking shelter when it struck the reef. Heavy weather prevented the lookout from seeing Raspberry Island lighthouse.

Pennsylvanians on Vessel.

ERIE, PA., Sept. 3.—(Special.)—A telegram was received here this evening from Chief Engineer William Phillips of the steamer Sevonia. He said that the steamer broke in two while about two miles off York island, near Bayfield, Wis. Two lady passengers—Miss Kate Spencer and Mrs. Lillian Jones, sister of the Rev. H. Canfield, both of this city—were taken ashore with the steward's wife and the chalmer's wife in a boat commanded by the chief engineer. He did not know what had become of Capt. John MacDonald and the other members of the crew.

A. D. MacDonald, a leading banker of this city, said that he had heard nothing from his brother, the captain of the Sevonia, but had been informed that a portion of the boat was above water. Capt. MacDonald lives at North East, this county, and was accompanied by several young men from this city and North East who were traveling as members of the crew.

It is expected that all of these will be heard from as soon as they can reach a place from which they can telegraph. The Sevonia was enlarged this summer by being rebuilt and lengthened. It is owned by a company of which James Mellrier of this city is the head. The boat was valued at several hundred thousand dollars.

Another Steamer Wrecked.

DULUTH, Sept. 3.—The steel steamer North Wind, Capt. Thomas Stevenson, of the Mutual Transit Company, after riding out a gale on Lake Superior, was lifted by a huge wave and thrown violently against the south pier of the Duluth ship canal, piercing a hole in the port bow and causing the vessel to sink in 25 feet of water as she was entering the Northern Pacific's Lake Superior slip. The main deck is under water, but the ship is not down so deep forward.

Nobody was injured by the accident, and the cargo, consisting of 1,500 tons of merchandise, is now being lightered.

MR. ROCKEFELLER BUYS A WIG

It Is Steel Gray and a Poor Fit, but It Suits the World's Richest Man.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 3.—(Special.)—John D. Rockefeller has purchased a wig. He wore it at the services at the Euclid Avenue Baptist church this morning. With his altered appearance he was scarcely recognized. Mr. Rockefeller took the matter with a smile, and seemed not the least abashed.

The wig is steel gray in color. At the back it does not conform to the lines of the head. The absolute lack of the hair, past or late made the distinction between the wig and the underlying portion of his head striking.

MISTAKE IN HATS CAUSES HIGHWAYMAN'S CAPTURE

NEW CASTLE, PA., Sept. 3.—(Special.)—By his mistake in picking up the wrong hat, David H. Jones identified two men who had attempted to hold him up last night. This afternoon the police arrested Charles McCarthy and William Kennedy, two men who were lying drunk in the street. Jones came to police station to report the attempted holdup and identified the hat worn by one of the men as his. In the words on the street he had picked up one of the many hats at a fire.

THIEF USES A CLEAVER TO CHOP DOWN WALLS

Then He Hacks Out Portion of Floor, Gets Into Clothing Store and Carries Away Plunder. Is Caught With Goods.

With a butcher's cleaver Michael Meskel chopped his way through two buildings yesterday morning and gained entrance to the store of Israel Silverman at 1122 Penn avenue from which he carried away a quantity of goods. He was later arrested and locked up No. 3 police station.

The man is stable boss for Bernard Gloekler, who has a butchers' supply house at 1133 Penn avenue. The building next door is vacant and Silverman's store is adjacent to this. Gloekler's stables are in the rear of the vacant building and it was the stable wall Meskel first attacked with the cleaver. The plaster and lath offered little resistance to his heavy blows and he was soon in the vacant storeroom.

After working a while on the next wall Meskel came upon the bricks and found it impossible to go further. Not discouraged he started upon the floor and chopped a hole of a size sufficient to permit his going down into the cellar. Then he hacked down a portion of the wooden partition between the two cellars and got into Silverman's store.

One of Silverman's sons visited the store soon after and discovered that the place had been robbed. He informed the police and Officer Frank Vincent made an investigation. Starting in Silverman's cellar he went through the hole Meskel had made and arriving in the Gloekler stables came upon Meskel preparing four suits of clothes for removal.

Silverman says besides the four suits there were 18 pairs of trousers and three hats taken. Meskel admits taking the suits but disclaims any knowledge of the other goods. Meskel who is 35 years of age and single, lives at 5434 Wylie avenue and has borne a good reputation heretofore.

GERMANY BARS OUT RUSSIANS

Cholera Epidemic in Czar's Dominion Stops All Immigration.

HAMBURG LINER IN NEW YORK

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

BERLIN, Sept. 3.—Dr. Nocht, harbor physician for the government at Hamburg, in reply to inquiries concerning cholera, telegraphs as follows:

"The trans-shipment of Russian emigrants having been suspended at Hamburg further cholera infection is improbable. The room companion of the first case has a slight attack, but otherwise all the emigrants are healthy.

"Three emigrants due to sail last Thursday on the steamer Moltke (for New York) were landed and since then have been under medical observation. All are healthy. The drinking water and the sanitary arrangements here are faultless, and consequently an epidemic is unlikely.

"Single instances naturally, in spite of the greatest care, cannot always be prevented, but no danger exists for sea traffic. I am convinced that all the means for opposing the cholera are in use. We are going to meet the future with tranquility, and we hold that Americans have no grounds for disquietude."

HAMBURG, Sept. 3.—About 50 emigrants had traveled from Russia with a man who died from cholera. They passed two medical stations on the way and a portion of the detachment was on board and the steamer Moltke was in the lower Elbe when word reached the magistracy of the death from cholera. The senate was summoned and a representative of the Hamburg-American Steamship Company was invited to be present. It was decided to immediately debark the emigrants, which was done.

On the Pretoria, which sailed Saturday, were German, Italian and Hungarian emigrants, but no Russians, 414 in all. At the emigrant station at Veddel are 160. None of them is ill.

The opinion is expressed in Berlin that the United States seaboard has more to fear from emigrants shipping at Trieste than from German ports, as cholera is already in Austrian Poland.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—The port sanitary authorities are adopting all necessary measures to deal with the possible invasion of cholera. A large medical staff has been detailed to examine all vessels entering the Thames. No alarm has as yet been manifested in England, but some newspapers are calling upon the government to take means for the control of exclusion of Russian emigrants.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The Hamburg-American line steamship Bluecher, the first vessel to arrive from Hamburg since the appearance of cholera in Germany, was detained at quarantine for more than two hours today while Health Officer Doty and his assistants subjected passengers and crew to a rigid examination. The long detention caused some alarm, as it was feared the delay meant the dreaded disease or its symptoms had been discovered on board. There was consequently much rejoicing when it was made known that, save for a case of measles, which had developed in the steerage, the vessel was absolutely clear of illness.

OLD SOLDIERS GATHER IN MULTITUDE AT DENVER

Freight Trains Annulled for the Benefit of Passenger Traffic Into Denver.

DENVER, Sept. 3.—The thirty-ninth annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic will begin in Denver tomorrow. The city is crowded with guests tonight, and heavily loaded trains are arriving from all directions. In order to facilitate the handling of passenger trains, the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railway has ordered all freight trains annulled for the next 24 hours.

There are five candidates for the office of commander-in-chief, namely: Corporal James Tanner of New York, Robert Brown of Ohio, Col. Borroughs of New Jersey, former Congressman Charles Burton and Gen. George Stone of California.

WAS POISONING DONE IN SALOON?

WHAT THE DIAGRAM SHOWS

What light could be thrown on the mysterious death of Private Michael Ryan of Company I, First United States infantry, if a thorough investigation were made among those who were present when the dead man drank that one glass of beer just previous to his death?

This is a question that would find a ready answer if proper and immediate action had been taken by the police authorities. Such an investigation should have been made as much for the benefit of the proprietor of the saloon, in order to erase any false suspicion, as for the benefit of a coroner's or grand jury.

There was a third civilian in the saloon at the time Ryan took his last drink, and this man did not appear beore the coroner nor has he been seen by the police authorities relative to his knowledge of the affair. This man joined the soldiers in the one round of drinks which Private W. R. Britt paid for, according to Britt.

Death Must Have Followed Quickly.

From the large quantity of chloral found in Ryan's stomach, it is clearly evident he met death shortly after taking the poison. The six men who accompanied him to the saloon state that he could not have taken it en route to the saloon without their knowledge.

While there is no known possible motive for him to commit suicide, and while many reasons are known why suicide is a false theory, it has developed that Ryan could not have taken the fatal drug while returning from the saloon. He walked back from the saloon to the arsenal, from Forty-first to Fortieth street, shortly after 8 o'clock in the evening, at a time when the street was filled with workingmen returning home from the nearby mills. He walked this one block past a solid row of retail stores, in front of which many persons were seated. A thorough canvass among these residents fails to disclose one who was attracted by a soldier, or any other persons, applying anything to his lips or acting in any manner likely to attract suspicion on the evening on which Ryan met his death.

Diagram Tells the Story.

Herewith is given a diagram of the interior of the saloon in which Ryan and his companions congregated on the evening of the mystery. Of the nine men who were in the saloon at the time, aside from the bartender, the position of each man is indicated according to descriptions given by Private Britt and other soldiers who were in the saloon at the time.

Ryan stood at the far end of the bar at a point indicated by the figure 1. Private Splain is shown by figure 2, Private Powers by figure 3, Private O'Conners by figure 4, Private Hurley by figure 5, and Private Britt by figure 6. The six soldiers alone stood against the bar.

According to the soldiers, two civilians stood at the points indicated by figures 7 and 8, and according to Private Britt he bought and paid for eight glasses of beer.

The soldiers, including Splain, who stood beside Ryan, are agreed that Ryan was engaged in conversation for the greater portion of the time he spent in the saloon.

Ryan's Glass Was Unprotected.

Naturally his glass of beer was at his right, and while in conversation he faced his comrades to his left, turning from his glass and leaving it to the rear of him while talking. If there was a man with so evil a purpose as to desire his life, the glass was accessible almost beyond detection.

Immediately back of Ryan was located a toilet room, the door facing the bar. Adjoining the toilet room was the side entrance to the saloon, and in the rear of the saloon was the dining-room. Ryan's glass was accessible to any one who might have been in the dining-room, the toilet, or who may have desired to enter by the side door.

Private Britt, who stood near the main entrance, and soldiers who were beside him, declare that a civilian who was in the saloon at the time Ryan took his drink and who was not in the room when they arrived, did not come in by the front door.

Wandered About the Barroom.

This civilian is not indicated on the accompanying diagram, because his position in the room while the drink was being taken was not a fixed one. He did not join in the treat, and, according to Britt, who was the buyer, was not asked.

Whether or not these known circumstances would in any wise solve the perplexing mystery of Ryan's death must remain unanswered in the absence of a police investigation and in the presence of a snap judgment of suicide. That an investigation was an urgent necessity, and the lack of one a gross neglect, is clear. At the coroner's inquest the police were unable to shed any light on the case, but enough indisputable evidence was at hand to bring in a murder verdict. This was countermanded by Superintendent of Police Wallace several days later, when he, unassisted, brought in a verdict of suicide.

RAIN AND WIND SWEPT NEW YORK CITY STREETS

Floods of Water Cause Tieups in the Subway and Great Damage Is Done.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—A rain and wind storm of unusual severity swept over New York early today and wrought much damage in the way of flooded cellars, delayed traffic and the crumbling of the walls of a number of buildings under construction. According to the official report of the weather bureau, the storm began here at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon and continued until 11 a. m. today. During that time 3.53 inches of rain fell.

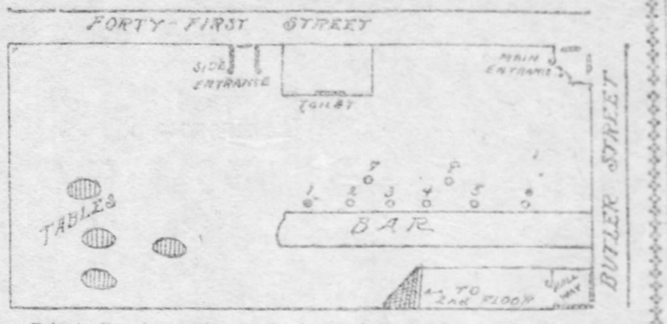
This flood of water taxed the sewage facilities of the city and in the downtown section overran the gutters and poured into cellars. The underground conduits of the surface railroads became filled with water, causing numerous tieups. Along West and South streets, extending along the river fronts, the damage was greatest. The streets became inundated and passengers bound for the various ferries had to wade through water ankle deep.

The height of the storm was reached in the early morning hours, when, driven before a northeastern gale, the rain swept in from the ocean in torrents. In Brooklyn several partly constructed houses collapsed. The building authorities were constantly called upon to shore up walls which threatened disaster. An almost unprecedented rainfall is reported from the cities and towns near New York.

CABLE LINES CLOSED THROUGHOUT FAR EAST

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(Special.)—The Commercial Cable Company gives notice that they are advised by Hongkong that for the present the Formosa cable is closed to all but government traffic. The Commercial Cable Company has received advices from Shanghai that the Chinese have one line to North China and Chefoo working slowly with great delay.

PLAN OF THE BARROOM WHERE PRIVATE RYAN TOOK HIS LAST DRINK



Private Ryan's position at the bar is indicated by the figure 1 on the extreme end. The other men lined directly against the bar were fellow-soldiers: Privates Splain, Powers, O'Conners, Hurley and Britt, being indicated by the figures 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 respectively. Figures 7 and 8 indicate two civilians, while a third civilian, who was in the room, is not indicated, because he maintained no fixed position. One of the civilians, who was not in the room when the soldiers entered, but who was later seen and spoken, is said not to have entered by the front door.

PENSACOLA, FLA., IS QUARANTINED

State Health Officer Throws a Cordon Around the Entire City.

THREE YELLOW FEVER DEATHS

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 3.—The yellow fever report for today is as follows: New cases, 29; total to date, 2,024; deaths, 3; total deaths, 287; new foci, 11; cases under treatment, 305; cases discharged, 1,432.

For the first time in nearly a month the number of new cases of yellow fever were in the twenties today. With only three deaths compared to 23 deaths on September 3, 1878, the feeling of confidence that the fever is being wiped out is growing. Among the new cases is that of Capt. B. F. Clayton, United States army quartermaster in charge of this department. City Councilman E. T. Dunn is also on the list.

The country situation is improving somewhat, though the discovery of new centers of infection causes anxiety. Despite the rigid regulations it is believed that many persons have entered New Orleans from infected country places.

Patterson, where it was feared Italians contemplated trouble, has developed nothing new. Nearly all of the city carts were used today in salting gutters in New Orleans. A thousand tons of salt have been used so far.

Outside cases—Tallulah, two cases; Leesville, total, 221 cases; 20 deaths; 146 cases under treatment; Patterson, one new case, St. Bernard, Corinne, two cases, Terre Aux Boeuf, one case, Morgan City, one new case; St. Rose, three new cases; Gulfport, Miss., five new cases; Handsboro, Miss., one case; Vicksburg, Miss., two new cases.

PENSACOLA, FLA., Sept. 3.—Two new cases of yellow fever were discovered, the patients being a Miss Brent, a sister of Gen. Brent, who was stricken Friday, and the other John Humphreys. Both are in the original area of infection and no new sub-foci have been discovered. Gen. Brent will hardly live through the night. A cordon has been thrown around the entire city by State Health Officer Porter in order to protect other towns in the state where parties might travel from here. Dr. Porter believes the crisis in the situation will come during the latter portion of the week. Dr. Guiteras, the Cuban expert, who has been here for several weeks, left this morning for Tampa, but will probably return about Friday or Saturday.

ATLANTA, GA., Sept. 3.—The city board of health today refused to quarantine against yellow fever infected points. The original case is the only one thus far reported.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., Sept. 3.—Maj.-Gen. Haynes, commanding the Arkansas militia, which is furnishing guards to enforce the state yellow fever quarantine, was officially informed today of the existence of a case of yellow fever at Maysville, I. T.

VICKSBURG, MISS., Sept. 3.—Two cases of yellow fever were reported today making a total of five under treatment. Both of the new cases are negroes.

MEXICO BARS OUT PANAMA FREIGHT, FEARING PLAGUE

Ecuadoran Consul at Colon Denies There Are Any New Cases There.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

COLON, Sept. 3.—The report by the medical authorities of the canal zone that the death on August 28 of laborers employed on the wharf at La Boca was due to bubonic plague has given rise to much discussion. Jeronimo Ossa, the Ecuadorean consul at Colon, declares officially that the report is false and that there have been no additional cases of bubonic plague on the isthmus. The direct result of this reported prevalence of the plague is that Central American and Mexican ports refuse to receive freight sent by way of the Isthmus. Costa Rica and Nicaragua have been altogether closed to isthmian ports. Several thousand tons of freight for Central America and Mexico is now tied up on the isthmus and this freight is increasing with the arrival of every vessel.

Sweeping changes are taking place in the management of the Panama railroad. H. G. Bierd, who arrived here Thursday from New York, has assumed the duties of superintendent of the road, and William Rodman, who accompanied Mr. Bierd, has been appointed roadmaster.

ZANZIBAR, Sept. 3.—This town is declared to be infected with plague. There have been 10 cases among the natives from which five deaths resulted.

ROBBERS BEAT BOOTBLACK.

Refusal to Assist in Burglary Results in His Being Choked and Robbed.

CANONSBURG, PA., Sept. 3.—William Wheeler, a colored bootblack, was held up by two foreigners at 12:30 this morning while on his way home from work. They demanded that he assist them to enter the residence of J. C. Morgavin, West Pike street, and when he refused they beat and choked him until he was unconscious.

They then robbed him of what change he had on his person and after tying him, placed him on the street car track. He was found by the street car men and taken to a physician's and recovered consciousness. He may recover.

MOTHER REFUSES ALL INFORMATION

Daughter Dead from Poison Self-Administered, and Her Body Is Unclaimed.

IS GLAD IT IS ALL OVER

The Pittsburgh Gazette Bureau,
Herald Building, Herald Square,
NEW YORK, Sept. 3.

Many inquiries were made tonight about the history of a beautiful young girl whose body, clothed in a pauper's shroud, lying in the undertaking rooms of the Stephen Merritt Undertaking company, at Eighth avenue and Nineteenth street. There were a hundred things which told that the girl had not belonged to the pauper class.

Taken on Saturday morning from a handsomely furnished room in No. 221 West Forty-fifth street to Bellevue hospital, suffering from poison, the girl died in the hospital at 7:50 o'clock Saturday night. Today Dr. O'Hanlon, coroner's physician, performed an autopsy. He concluded from what meager information he had that it was a case of suicide.

All the time the physicians were working over her in the hospital she was conscious, and the few words she uttered there only increased the mystery of her case. In answer to the usual questions, she said her name was Bessie Graves, that she was 19 years old and had purposely taken poison.

A few hours later, when she realized that death was rapidly approaching, she told an attendant that her right name was Elizabeth R. Wilson, and not Bessie Graves, of No. 101 West Fifty-second street.

Tonight when a reporter went to that address, a middle-aged woman appeared. When the woman was asked if she was Mrs. Wilson, she replied coldly, "Mrs. Wilson has no information."

"Does Mrs. Wilson know her daughter is dead?" was asked.

"Mrs. Wilson has no information," she answered.

"Will the girl's mother or family claim the body?" was the next question. To that the same answer was given.

As she was being carried into Bellevue hospital on a stretcher an attendant asked: "Aren't you ashamed to do a thing like this?"

"No," replied the girl calmly. "I am only too glad it's all over."

RUSSIA NEEDS ACCESS TO SEA

Defeat by Japan Leaves Czar's Realms With But Frozen Harbors.

POSSIBLE SOUTHERN COAST

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 3.—Alexander Briantchaninoff, correspondent of the St. Petersburg Slove, writing regarding the future policy of Russia, says:

"It is an axiom that a great country cannot consider its frontiers as definitely fixed until its provinces have obtained free and unobstructed access to the sea. Germany has her ports on the North sea, England the Atlantic, France the Atlantic and Mediterranean, while the United States, flanked by two oceans, is in a better position than any European country, and for this reason must certainly in the near future play a great role in the world's politics. Russia, owing to this unfortunate and regrettable war, and to the conditions on which peace have been obtained from Japan, loses her absolute preponderance in the far east, but it is to be hoped that she will be wise enough to recommence the badly begun adventure in Manchuria. She will have to be satisfied to regain through commerce what she has lost through the army.

Vladivostok, frozen for months every year, with Japan sentinels all around her, cannot have a sufficient political value to counterbalance Japanese ambition, so that a frank understanding between Russia and Japan is necessary in order that the two countries shall be sure of each other's good faith. The maintenance of Chinese integrity certainly enters into this program, as it is only through peace being insured in the far east that Russia can be free to confine her activities to the European stage, where her presence will soon become indispensable.

Only a Sea of Ice.

"No matter what the future of the control of the gateways to the Baltic may be, that sea will never be for Russia anything else but a sea closed by ice. So it was natural for Russia sooner or later to begin again her efforts to gain an open port to the southward. To attain this object there are only two ways, the Persian gulf and the Bosphorus. The first is the easier, Persia being in a state of disintegration, while the Indian army, although quite capable of defending India, is not in a position to go to the defense of Persia.

"Germany would certainly help Russia's schemes in the Persian gulf if it were left free in the Bosphorus, while if Russia tried to reach the Bosphorus, she would have to face German opposition and fight Turkey, which is much stronger than Persia. England at most would remain passive. Still the conquest of the Bosphorus would be the best Russia could do, as to reach the Persian gulf would necessitate forcing a way several thousand miles—it would not be dissimilar to the index which took her to Port Arthur. She would advance between two rivals. On the other hand if she directed her efforts toward the Bosphorus and offered some facilities to England in the south of Persia, she could be tranquil.

"On the east she would be in a position to protect the Slav cause against German influence, which is growing every day. On the eastern side she would prevent Germany from being paramount in Europe. Finally there is another reason for which it is time that Russia should understand that she must rely on England and not on Germany. Germany is the power of today, and is putting forward every effort to make England the power of yesterday and prevent the rising of the power of tomorrow—Russia, at the head of a great Slav confederation. France, which is undoubtedly the power of yesterday, has realized this and has entered into an understanding with England while still an ally of Russia.

Abandoned the Slavs.

"Alexander III. realized it when he joined hands with France, but after him a clear political object on the part of Russia was lost. The duty of Russia toward her Slav brothers was abandoned, was forgotten, and the country with eyes closed threw herself into the hazardous game which naturally ended in a catastrophe. If now Germany succeeds in pushing Russia into the Persian gulf the adventure will mean a quarrel with England, coolness toward France and the sacrifice of the Slavs of Austria and Turkey on the altar of German ambition. It will finally mean a new conflagration, with Japan and England combined with Germany looking for her own interests, at most neutral.

"If, on the contrary, a quadruple understanding could be reached between the dual alliances, France and Russia on one side and England and Japan on the other, having as an object the protection of their Asiatic, African and Australian possessions, Russia might easily reach her object on the Bosphorus and support Italy and the Slavs when the inevitable question of the Austrian succession arises. In this way the threatening imperialism of Germany would be quenched and the European equilibrium would be safeguarded, a thing which is necessary for the influence of the United States in the Pacific. However, to be able to direct the Russian politics toward these far distant but natural and possible aims it is necessary to first clear the Russian foreign office of German traditions and personnel and have true diplomatists like Witte and not clerk diplomatists in charge of Russia's foreign policy, all of which will be more difficult than was the conclusion of peace with Japan."

ST. LAWRENCE IS BLOCKED.

Smoke Bound Steamers Close the Channel of Great Canadian Stream.

MONTREAL, Sept. 3.—The Allan liner Victorian, which is aground at Cape Laroche, 50 miles above Quebec, will probably be floated by Tuesday. The mails have been forwarded by way of New York and some of the passengers have gone that way also. Others will remain in Montreal and sail on other steamers.

Passengers on the Victorian say the vessel grounded in avoiding running down the liner Cape Breton of the Dominion Coal Company. The Breton was lost in the smoke and looking for an anchorage. Liners which sailed for Montreal on Saturday have not yet reached Quebec. They are anchored in the river, as the channel is blocked.

CZAR HAS FAITH IN HIS SOLDIERS

Sends a Message to Gen. Linevitch Explaining Why Peace Was Made.

SYMPATHY FOR THE TROOPS

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 3.—The emperor on Friday last telegraphed the following to Gen. Linevitch:

"The negotiations at Portsmouth had, on August 19, to a refusal of the demands of the Japanese government regarding the cession of the island of Sakhalin, the payment of a war indemnity, the surrender of our ships lying in neutral harbors and the limitation of our forces in the waters of the Pacific ocean. After further negotiations, Japan, on August 29, yielded all her conditions, but asked for the return of that portion of Sakhalin occupied by Japanese troops, which is the part held by Japan until 1875, and then ceded by treaty to Russia.

"The self-sacrificing army, so dear to me, withstood the assault of a numerically superior enemy in Manchuria, step by step, during 19 months, obstinately repulsing his advance. Under your leadership the army was reorganized and strengthened by the arrival of troops from Russia, and it is now greater in numbers and stronger than before. It was not only prepared to ward off the enemy, but also to inflict upon him an important defeat.

"I and all Russia believe in the strength of my great army and in its readiness to sacrifice itself for the good of the fatherland, but my duty to my conscience and to the people entrusted to me by God commands me not to again put to the test the valor of Russian men so dear to my heart, and not to expose them to fresh and endless horrors of war in order to retain half of a remote island, which Japan ceded to us in 1875, and I have therefore accepted the preliminary peace conditions.

"The Russian troops have repeatedly proved during this sanguinary conflict their valor and self-sacrifice.

"Convey this to my dear army. May it know that I and Russia value the sacrifices which it has made in this severe war."

The Grashdanin today says:

"With the advent of peace as the result of the conference at Portsmouth, European diplomacy steps back to give place to the practical, sound, common-sense diplomacy exemplified by President Roosevelt. M. Witte is the same type of man as President Roosevelt. The latter understood the Russian plenipotentiary and came to his assistance in time of need, but the success of the conference was entirely due to the president. M. Witte made a good impression on the Americans, and this helped him in his work."

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 3.—It is reported here that through the influence of a German prince the Hamburg-American Steamship Company has secured large contracts for the taking home of the Russian prisoners in Japan at $2.50 a head.

MIKADO SENDS THANKS

portance. He has been greatly occupied this summer with public business and has had scarcely an opportunity to enjoy his vacation. He will endeavor now to have some time to himself.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The Rev. Donald MacKay, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Collegiate church, during the course of his sermon today, took occasion to pay a tribute to President Roosevelt, who for 20 years has been a member of this Dutch Reformed congregation. Dr. MacKay said:

"Inasmuch as our president, Theodore Roosevelt, made profession of his faith in this church 20 years ago and has been ever since a loyal member, it seems only fitting that here this morning we record our profound appreciation of the signal service which he has rendered to the whole civilized world by his masterful and unwearied efforts in securing peace between Russia and Japan.

"Not only in the magnificent work consummated last week has President Roosevelt added enduring luster to his own name, but he has also given a new influence to America, as the arbiter of peace in the councils of the nations. More and more will other powers look to this country for the peaceful adjustment of international difficulties in the light of what our president has accomplished in ending this bloody and disastrous war. We rejoice with Russia and Japan in concluding a peace which will mean something better and more permanent than cessation from bloodshed.

"The president's splendid service will be but half accomplished if it is not recognized by all the great powers as a means of bringing about an alliance that will safeguard the interests of peace and Christian civilization in the far east for many years."

TREATY OF PORTSMOUTH IS FINISHED

Plenipotentiaries Have Said Last Words in Debate at Peace Conference.

GREAT SPARRING FOR POINTS

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 3.—The treaty of peace is completed. It consists of a preamble and 17 articles, the substance of all of which have been given in the Associated Press dispatches. But there were still differences about the wording of the protocol of the last sitting, which must be signed before the treaty itself can be signed. The Japanese presented a protocol to which the Russians took exception. The differences, however, are expected to be straightened out before noon tomorrow, and it seems quite possible the treaty will be signed tomorrow afternoon. Mr. De Martens, who is extremely anxious to get back to Russia, has engaged passage on La Lorraine sailing from New York Thursday, and leaves here on Wednesday.

After being treated to every variety of weather, the peace conference promises to end in the midst of a raging northeaster. Since last night it has been blowing a gale, accompanied by torrents of rain. According to local traditions, such northeasters continue for three days, so that it will probably last over the day on which the treaty is signed.

Anxious for Last Curtain.

The plenipotentiaries and the attaches of the two missions seem to be fully as anxious for the curtain to ring down on the final act of the drama as the little colony of newspaper correspondents and summer guests who are waiting to be "in at the death." The work of engrossing the treaty has already begun, Mr. Rojestvensky doing the caligraphic work of the French and Mr. Adashi of the English text.

The Japanese are great sticklers for words. They cling tenaciously to their ideas. Careful preparation and methods have been the secret of their successes on land and sea and in their diplomatic struggles at Portsmouth the same qualities have been displayed.

In the sittings of the conference Baron Komura always stated the Japanese position upon a given point briefly, but with great care, and when M. Witte, whose method was entirely different, would try to draw out explanations he would stick doggedly to the statement he had made.

M. Witte, a man of affairs, resourceful and talented as he is admitted to be, had his case in his head. He never brought any papers with him. He met everything which came up in an off-hand way, weighing it instantly in his mind, analyzing it, arguing the logic pro and con, and stating his view quite bluntly, never asking for time to consider.

Great Diplomatic Debate.

Baron Komura, on the other hand, could with the greatest difficulty be induced to enter into the region of argument. He stuck to the brief before him. Speaking always quite slowly, he would repeat over and over again what he had stated as if he had learned his lesson. Several times M. Witte would say:

"Yes, I understand perfectly what you say, but what do you mean, what is your real object?" Then Baron Komura would go back and restate his proposition almost exactly as he had done originally. Both systems had their advantages. By insisting, insisting, insisting, Baron Komura would sometimes catch M. Witte off his guard and provoke him into statements which were always eagerly seized upon. As a final resort Baron Komura was always ready with a written solution of a question and would produce it suddenly, saying:

"This is what we propose. What have you got to offer?" Then the value of preparation and foresightedness was apparent. M. Witte seldom had a crystallized counter proposition to make. But on the other hand, whenever M. Witte succeeded in leading his adversary into the realm of argument, previous preparation availed nothing; he had Baron Komura at a disadvantage. One of those present likened Baron Komura to a horse in "blinders"—as long as he was on the beaten road with his work cut out ahead of him, he got along swimmingly, but the instant he was off the road into the woods with the "blinders" removed, he appeared to be confused and lost and hastened back as speedily as possible to the road he had mentally traversed so often and with every foot of which he was familiar.

is Withheld from Public.

One of the articles of the treaty provides for the protection of private rights and property acquired under Russian control in South Sakhalin and in Dalny, Port Arthur and other places in the Liao Tung peninsula. The Russian government has innumerable petitions on this subject. Several of them are from Americans, who held concessions in Southern Sakhalin.

While a full synopsis of the treaty will be cabled to the governments of the two countries, the actual text will not be known at Tokyo or St. Petersburg until the plenipotentiaries arrive. It is expected that to cable such a long document textually would make it possible for an expert later, when the text becomes public, to work out the government cipher. M. Witte will personally convey the text to St. Petersburg and Baron Komura to Tokyo. This is the real reason why both are anxious to get home as soon as possible. As the treaty does not go into force until the two emperors have signed. To avoid the delay of exchange of documents which would involve six weeks at least, official notifications of the final approval by the emperors will be made through neutrals, the United States in the case of Japan and France in the case of Russia. The text of the treaty will not be made public at Portsmouth. If it ever is it will be after it has received the approval of the two emperors. M. Witte, when questioned upon this subject, remarked laughingly:

"You are at liberty to announce both in Europe and America that we are willing to make the 'treaty of Portsmouth' public as soon as the new Anglo-Japanese treaty is given to the world."

The signing of the treaty is to be a very exclusive affair. The Japanese objected to the preference of any newspaper correspondents or photographers, and it has therefore been decided that besides the plenipotentiaries and secretaries, there shall be present only Assistant Secretary Peirce, representing the president; Gov. McLane of New Hampshire, the mayor of Portsmouth, Admiral Mead, commander of the navy yard, and the commanders of any United States warships in the harbor—in this case only Capt. Winslow of the Mayflower. Mr. Peirce has procured four ordinary quill pens, with one of which each of the plenipotentiaries will sign.

Baron Komura and Mr. Takahira, through Mr. Sato, have invited the newspaper correspondents and guests of the hotel and the United States government officials here, to meet them in the hotel parlors tomorrow night for an informal reception.

CENTRAL STATION KEPT BUSY WITH PRISONERS

Police Arrest 30 Men in Two Raids. Kirby Hears 133 Cases—Shoplifters Are Fined.

For a while yesterday afternoon Inspector Robinson, Capt. Bartley and a squad of police got busy, and the result was that 30 men were taken in two raids on alleged disorderly houses and taken to Central police station. The first place visited by the police was 913 Webster avenue. Frank Ambrose, who is charged with being the proprietor, and nine men were captured. The officers then went to 20 Tunnel street and loaded 20 Italians into the patrol wagon and took them to Central station. In one or the places a small boy was tending bar. The raiding squad also found kegs of beer and three barrels of wine. Most of the men left a forfeit for their appearance at the hearing this morning.

Magistrate Kirby had a big day in Central police court yesterday morning. When he appeared to hold the hearings he found 133 prisoners waiting to tell their story and hear his decision. No. 1 station furnished 60 prisoners, No. 2 had 51 and No. 3 had 22. Aside from a few special cases, the big crowd of prisoners was composed of the Sunday morning crowd, and the magistrate's decisions were of the kind usually made in cases of Saturday night celebrators.

The pool room at Center avenue and Soho street, against which much complaint has been made because of disorder there, furnished 22 prisoners for the hearing, the place having been raided Saturday night. Charles McClelland, charged with being the manager of the place, was fined $10 and the other prisoners were discharged. The police raided 1308 Colwell street and got five women and two men. Bertha Smith, a white woman, was fined $100 on a charge of visiting a disorderly house. Three women and a man, negroes, were each fined $50 on a like charge and Charles Hill and his wife, both negroes, were each fined $100.

Rosario Sisatus and Antonio Tistista, Italians arrested on Saturday on a charge of shoplifting in a Fifth avenue store, were each fined $10.

Electric Wires Cause a Blaze.

Crossed electric wires set fire to the awning at the drug store of E. J. Johnston, 2552 Penn avenue, last night and the blaze spread to the meat packing house of Dunlevy & Co., at 2554 Penn avenue. No. 7 engine company was called out on a still alarm and extinguished the fire. Loss, $60.

Allegheny Man Marries in Far West.

George R. Miller, who formerly lived at 230 Observatory avenue, Allegheny, was married on Saturday, August 26, at Seattle, Wash., to Miss Laura Fiske of Helena, Mont. After a trip through Southern California, Mr. and Mrs. Miller will reside at Seattle.

HELD THREE SESSIONS.

United Presbyterian Missionaries and Clergymen in Conference Meet Morning, Afternoon and Evening.

Three sessions of the United Presbyterian Missionary conference, which is meeting here, were held yesterday. The morning session was held in the Sixth church, North Highland avenue, with the Rev. Dr. C. R. Watson, secretary of the board of foreign missions, presiding. He spoke of the call for 500 new missionaries and announced that the United Presbyterian church was devoting itself chiefly to the fields of India and Egypt. The Rev. Dr. R. M. Russell, pastor of the church, and several missionaries, also spoke.

The afternoon session was held in the chapel of the Allegheny Theological seminary, where J. Campbell White presided. "Why Some Prayers Seem Unanswered" was the subject which was discussed by the clergymen and missionaries. Mr. White explained that some persons were impatient and that often the things asked for are received in unexpected form.

The evening session was held in the First church, Allegheny, with Dr. Waston presiding. Addresses were made by the Rev. William Somerh, Soudan; Prof. W. L. Porter, Tarkio, Mo., and Miss Criswell and Miss Sue Cooper of Bellaire, O., all outgoing missionaries. The conference will close today with three sessions in the chapel of the seminary.

After today's rest tomorrow will be apropos for looking over the new things which Fashion has set her approval upon.

Degrees are to be conferred on a brilliant company by St. Andrew's university when Andrew Carnegie assumes the rectorship. Mr. Carnegie himself is to become a doctor of laws, and with him Whitelaw Reid, Charlemagne Tower, Bishop Potter, Nicholas Murray Butler and William J. Holland. Pittsburgh is peculiarly interested in the occasion and in the gentlemen to be honored, though but one now gives this city as his home address.

Not alone the Equitable, but the other large insurance companies are being investigated by the New York legislative committee. Five of the leaders have been notified to prepare complete lists of their investments, with particulars concerning the price paid and the earnings thereof. There is no suspicion that any of these companies are unsound, but there is reason to expect irregularities that should be wholly eliminated. The investigation is a proper one and should serve a useful purpose.

President Roosevelt has received the thanks of the mikado of Japan for his part in bringing about the peace agreement. The greetings of the Japanese emperor are as cordial as those sent by Czar Nicholas of Russia and testify as fully to the services rendered by the president. It is a fortunate peace for both nations, because it is one likely to endure and to inure to the great benefit of the far east. For that reason President Roosevelt will be glad, irrespective of congratulations or credit.

Pittsburgh has promise of a continued and better supply of natural gas in the completion of the Philadelphia Company's third pipe line from West Virginia. That promise is strongly reinforced by the operations of the Peoples and Manufacturers companies. It will be years yet before the available supply for domestic use is exhausted. West Virginia and Western Pennsylvania are rich reservoirs and all of their resources have not yet been developed. The time will come when natural gas will become a memory, but happily that time is distant for Pittsburgh.

Scandals are multiplying in the department of agriculture at a great rate and it looks as though a complete overhauling would be one of the duties of the president on his return to Washington. From information at hand it appears most of the troubles of the department are more the result of indifferent moral apprehension than of positive intent to do wrong. It is probable the like may be found in other departments, war, navy and treasury. These things are not matters of politics or party, for they have persisted under changing administrations. They can be prevented only by a system of inspection that will inspect.

William Travers Jerome, who desires to be again the anti-Tammany candidate for district attorney of New York, has declined the proffered fusion nomination for mayor of that city. His declination is a proper rebuke for that impractical class of "reformers" which recognizes no fitness of things. Mr. Jerome attracted the attention of that cult partly by making a good record as district attorney, but more particularly by his spectacular declaration against partisanship. Ignoring the fact that administration of the prosecuting attorney's office is not a training in the duties of a mayor these "reformers" seized upon Jerome for their candidate. He would do because he was a man without a party. Jerome, however, appears to have more practical ideas than his non-partisan supporters and puts an end to their boosting him for mayor.

...print on another page an open ...ddressed by Henry C. Niles of ...he Hon. J. Lee Plummer, ...ominee for state treas...er is on its face mali... and unjust. It is an ...ch it in which the Lincoln party opposition to Mr. Plummer is conceived and is unworthy of any fair-minded citizen's consideration. Mr. Plummer can as sincerely denounce graft as can Mr. Niles and can as sincerely hope for the purification of his party from corruption it may contain. But when Mr. Niles asks him to denounce men who have not been convicted of any wrongdoing and when he assumes evil where there has been none he goes beyond bounds. His literary production is less creditable to his fame as an able member of the bar than his recent partisan speech before the State Bar association. He is both partisan and inaccurate.

Promise of Fenders.

Director Moore of the public safety department, just returned from his vacation, promises the fender tests shall be made next Tuesday, and if there be one satisfactory fender he will on Wednesday order it to be adopted. Very good. This declaration is an improvement on the assertion that "no fender is any good," pronounced before the director fled from an insistent public demand for life-saving devices. It is a recognition of the fact that the public believes lives are saved by proper fenders and will not be satisfied until this measure of protection is provided.

It will not be claimed for any fender that occasional fatalities may not occur with its use. It is claimed, however, that a large percentage of persons run down by street cars may escape death or mutilation by being caught in the basket. Children and aged persons are particularly liable to street car accidents. Fenders should save a large proportion of the little ones because they will easily survive shock and a few bruises. It is a pity fenders were not adopted and cars equipped before the army of children started the school year, but as that is now impossible the earliest practical future date must suffice. An approval by Director Moore on Wednesday should bear full fruit before the Christmas holidays.

Pittsburgh Steel for London.

Even to Pittsburgh $15,000,000 worth of steel is an item. When it is for export it attracts more attention than when designed for domestic consumption. Thus the orders for the White contracts in London look larger at the moment than $30,000,000 worth of equipment for the Pennsylvania railroad system, decided on a week ago. This is natural, because the export orders have a double significance.

It is not many years, as such things go, since the first considerable sale of Pittsburgh steel in London was announced. It was a special kind of steel in which Pittsburgh manufacturers excelled. It was then said Pittsburgh could never export to England the ordinary grades of steel. How rapidly that prophecy was contradicted all can remember. Now we hear of an order for $15,000,000 worth of steel to be made in Pittsburgh and shipped to London—ordinary structural shapes and even steel rails. It is progress worth while. The decrease in exports of agricultural products may be contemplated with equanimity while the difference is more than made up by increase in the exports of manufactured products.

Loubet's Good Influence.

France is looking around for a successor to President Emile Loubet. It is no easy task to find a statesman equal to this plain citizen who is desirous of retiring to the simple life he loves at the expiration of his present term in office. Since France became a republic it has had no better chief executive than Emile Loubet, the most democratic of the line. Under Loubet's administration France has prospered greatly. Its politics have been more tranquil than formerly. Its international relations have been peaceful and satisfactory.

The alliance with Russia was cemented during Loubet's official term; not less important has been the healing of the breach between France and Great Britain and the beginning of what promises to be a lasting friendship. In other directions, also, the reign of Loubet has made for peace and cordiality. This president's head has not been turned by flattery and power; his simple habits have not been abandoned for the follies of high life. He has been faithful to his trust and careful to perform his duty.

France may not readily secure a successor possessing Loubet's virtues. But France will be better for having had him in the palace of state. His influence on the life of the republic will live after him.

American Dangers.

Much has been said recently about the deterioration of American morality. The sermons are usually based on the discoveries of graft in its various forms, coupled with the foibles of an element of smart society. One of the latest of these diatribes appears in the Independent under the caption "A Menace to American Morals." The text pictures rather a menace to the nation. Starting with graft the writer passes to the "monkey-dinner circle of the American smart" and the dandy fool who has money.

Granted these things are a menace to well ordered, progressive nationality, yet disaster is not imminent. As long as there is a daily and periodical press that find it not unprofitable to denounce these things they are the exception and not the rule. The Independent itself recognizes the existence of a large middle class "not yet corrupted by the example of its 'betters,'" and a careful survey will add to this "middle class" a large element of hard-headed, sober-going men and women in the "upper ten," if not in the "submerged tenth." They are not merely sufficient to leaven the lump, they constitute nearly the whole loaf.

In the fact that graft and monkey-dinners and silly displays attract disapproving attention there is proof of the activity of the public conscience. It is true there has been a spread of graft that is alarming, though graft in one form and another has existed from time immemorial. There are corrupting influences at work in the country from which the Puritan fathers were free. Yet there is hope for the country. It may be, as the Independent says, "the salvation of American society lies in the possibility that this people can, even yet, be taught to read and to think," though we would phrase it that the possibility of salvation lies in getting the people to do so. Particularly is there salvation in thinking and while the country has its Roosevelts it will not be allowed to go to sleep wrapped in a mantle of corruption. While the common people look with anger on the grafting and with contempt on the "monkey-dinner circle" there is abundant hope for the future.

Labor Day.

Labor day will be observed in Pittsburgh by a great parade and demonstration, if the weather permits. It will be observed in any case by the thousands of workmen who "make the wheels go 'round" in this greatest workshop in the world; by the men who delve and the men who build; by the men who earn their bread in the sweat of their brow and by their families. It is labor's holiday, created in honor of the dignity of labor and for the recreation of all who work.

Pittsburgh will not be alone in this observance. Throughout all this broad land workmen will turn out to have their ranks numbered, to exhibit their strength and to make this annual demonstration in the cause of honest labor. It is a great conception, this day that is labor's own, and in time to come it will have greater significance and wider application. Features will be added for the instruction of the host of toilers as well as for their amusement.

It is not the purpose of this article to go deeply into the rights of labor, nor to repeat the familiar platitudes about its virtues. It is intended merely to felicitate Pittsburgh labor on a successful holiday and to suggest the study of the more serious side of the subject by those whom it most nearly concerns.

Judge Holt of the United States circuit court, New York, has refused the injunction asked by W. R. Hearst to restrain the publishers of the former Leslie's Magazine from using the word "American" in the new title. Mr. Hearst is not the only American, though it is characteristic bumptiousness on his part to claim exclusive use of the word. The American Magazine survives.

President Roosevelt is likely to have something to say about submarine boats in his message, speaking from the vantage ground of actual knowledge.

Jerome refuses to run for mayor on the New York fusion ticket on the principle that one good term of district attorney deserves another.

Candidate Berry is in demand as a speechmaker, his organs say, but there is very little demand for him as a state treasurer.

A magazine writer asks: "Do animals reason?" Probably a revival of the hog at the foot of the ladder episode.

There will soon be little enough of the Chinese boycott to warrant beginning of treaty negotiations.

Prospects continue favorable for the correction of Philadelphia's registry lists in court.

Scandals grow in the agricultural department with the luxuriance of Kansas corn.

There is no vestige of the Lincoln spirit in the party of that name.

Roosevelt's Infinite Tact.

History is crowded with the exploits of militant heroes. The glamour that surrounds the warrior completely eclipses the men who tried to avert war or to reconcile the belligerents. The peacemaker runs the risk of incurring the enmity of both sides. If he offers his good offices and fails he may earn the reputation of a meddler, an officious interloper in other men's quarrels. President Roosevelt discharged his delicate and high-minded duty with infinite tact, and all Americans rejoice that he was the chief instrument in bringing about the happy outcome at Portsmouth.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Great Trade Promoter.

The annual exposition which is maintained in Pittsburgh was opened on Wednesday evening and all the conditions promise a more interesting and more successful fair than any that has preceded it. These expositions have been continued for many years and have done much to promote the trade interests of Pittsburgh. People from all over Western Pennsylvania are attracted to the city and the merchants and wholesale dealers are the gainers. There are many ways in which an enterprise of this kind would be advantageous to Philadelphia.—Philadelphia Press.

Of True Blue Republicanism.

The Republican party organization in Washington county has never been built up on graft; has never levied tribute from any contractor or corporation for political ends. It has on the contrary rebuked such efforts; it has not countenanced them in any form. Its representatives in our state conventions, in the legislature and in our county offices, elected by the honest Republican voters of this county, have never been "for sale."—Washington Observer.

Don't Reach Real Offenders.

The pure food law is very well in theory, but in practice it too often works serious injustice. Instead of punishing innocent holders of adulterated food products, it ought to provide a way to get back to the original and only sinner. The retailers of cured meats and of canned goods, in meat and vegetable forms, have been mulcted many times, yet they were innocent of any offense, the real offenders being the packers or those goods.—Connellsville Courier.

A PREACHMENT BY THE QUIET OBSERVER

Relating to Those Who Strain at Gnats and Swallow Camels.

By ERASMUS WILSON.

The most orthodox in profession are sometimes most unorthodox in practice.

This you may know to be true. Indeed, you may be that same individual. And it is possible that you may not know it, never having had your attention called to the matter before.

How is it with you, anyhow? Are you all that you profess to be, or that you would have others to believe you are?

Haven't you known persons who were not all that they professed to be, and who thought you didn't know it? Hasn't their conduct amused you and furnished topics for lively conversation when closeted with a few of your choice friends?

Has it ever occurred to you that you might sometimes be the victim on a similar slter?

You are satisfied that you can spot a Janus-faced man any time. Are there not others who can do the same?

It will be well for you to see to it that you are what you profess to be, and in particular what you would have others think you are.

It is hardly probable that any of us are living as well as we know how, for in this strenuous life we can only approximate our ideals. This, however, does not justify us in professing, or pretending to be more, or better, than we really are.

The pretender always wears his sign so conspicuously that only the few are misled, and these not for long.

* * *

By your works you shall be known, rather than by your words.

Those who come before the people with many words are placed on the gridiron and tried out. And how few come out whole and sound?

It is the same with schemes for the reformation and betterment of the world. Many of these are proposed, but how few are found to be practical?

The people are ready to be made better, and are patiently awaiting the coming of practical reformers.

Some of you who have schemes for the betterment of social conditions may have doubts as to the desire, or even the willingness, of the people to be reformed and made better, especially those of you who have schemes for that purpose.

But the fact is that no man desires, or is even willing to become worse in character, or lower down in the social scale. And there are not many who do not hope and expect to rise higher than their present level.

* * *

Have you ever known a man or woman who really desired to become bad, or to lead an immoral or wicked life?

Those who go to the bad must first get into the bad way. This is easy enough at the present time, because there are so few on guard at the beginning of the ways, the attention of the many being taken up with those who are already in the bad way.

Were it not more rational to guard the way leading to the saloon than to worry over the confirmed saloon habitue?

How much better to erect fountains where men, women and children can get a drink of cool, wholesome water, than to stand at the saloon door frantically warning the thirsty ones not to go in.

A drinking fountain on each of the crowded squares in the city will keep more people out of saloons than all the warnings and prayers our temperance people can utter.

The people are ready to be saved from the demon of strong drink, but where are the saving hands?

* * *

Mr. Quiet Observer—You ask, "Why do so many men in our city dring beer and liquor?"

"Because they can't get water to drink," you answer.

Now, Mr. Quiet Observer, I am inclined to look at this question from the other side. Men in Pittsburgh do not drink because they cannot get water. They drink beer and liquor because they prefer beer and liquor to water.

If the truth were all told, many of the men who drink in Pittsburgh would walk, yea, run, past water fountains, restaurants, ice cream parlors, home, wife and little children to get to the saloon or some other place where they had to pay a high price for their beer.

What about the men in Pittsburgh who keep beer and liquor on their sideboards? What about the women in Pittsburgh who drink from these sideboards? Do any of these men or women drink beer and liquor because they cannot get water?

In my opinion, your excuse for drinking men is a poor one. Pittsburgh is well supplied with water, such as it is, and although fountains are not on our streets as they ought to be, men, women and children can get all the water they want outside of saloons. If this were not so, what would become of all the women and children who are as numerous on our streets as the men whom you say can't get water to drink?

If all the saloons in Pittsburgh were closed and kept closed, no one would suffer any loss, unless the saloonist, who might have to sing:

"Oh, what shall I do with my darling old till,
Which I loved to empty and fools loved to fill?"

Again you say men "are denied water and driven into saloons by the very people who are clamoring for the extinction of the saloon."

This is a sweeping charge against us. We are not offended at you, but we are surprised to hear a man of your ability make such a groundless charge. If the people, or party, which oppose the saloon were in office your charge would be well founded.

But they are not in office. The people who favor the saloon on the street and the water fountain off the street are in office and if there be such a thing as driving men to drink these officers and the people who elect them to office are the drivers and deprivers. These are the men who favor the saloon and the "red light district," which prepares young men and women for a ride in the patrol and a home in the penitentiary, almshouse or insane asylum.

The majority rules and approves of these things or they would not be here. Now, in the light of justice, how can you charge a protesting minority with the conditions which a ruling majority have established?

Did it ever occur to you that men drink because they have an appetite for it? The saloon increases this appetite and before any true reformation can come the appetite and the saloon must both be removed.

There are some people outside, and inside, of temperance organizations who think if they could get a man's head in a bucket of water or coffee that he could be kept out of the saloon.

I assure you that I am not one of those agitators. I agree with you that we have many "impractical, insincere temperance agitators, who are very active getting church courts to condemn the liquor business," but on election day they vote for the party which keeps the saloon in existence.

The Women's Christian Temperance union is waiting to get an opportunity to cast their votes for clean officers who will not make an agreement with evildoers. The W. C. T. U. is all right, and has done more for humanity than some of the other women's unions which indulge in high balls and cocktails. They have been tested and are ready to be tested again. THIEVES' HARVEST RICHES OF GOTHAM

Attempt of Police to Serve Two Masters Gives Law Breakers Unhampered Sway.

By FRANK A. PARKER.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The reign of lawlessness that has enveloped New York for the past several weeks seems to have reached the limit in the robbery of the home of Jose Aymar last week, from which oil paintings, statues, silver and bric-a-brac to the value of more than $100,000 was taken. The family is away for the summer, and the thieves lived for a week in the house, sleeping in the beds and eating in the dining-room, even going out for supplies, without the police being any the wiser. Policemen tramped daily and nightly in front of the house, but never heard a sound, and only the fact that an aged caretaker next door saw the men leaving the house with a bundle and notified the police prevented even more loot being secured by the thieves.

Strangely enough, the thieves knew all about the movements of the police. No sooner had a trap been laid and the police stationed in the house than the burglars disappeared. They did not come back for the packages that had been done up to be carried away later, and the result is that the police are still looking for a clue.

Good Sample of Gotham Criminals.

This is only an extra good example of the nerve of the criminals that infest New York. There have been holdups, robberies and even murders within the past few weeks that have absolutely baffled the acumen of the police department. The cause of this condition of affairs is not hard to find. The whole force is disorganized in its efforts to serve Tammany Hall without running too far counter to orders of the police commissioner. The men on the force are so busy trying to carry water on both shoulders that they haven't time to look for criminals. This is naturally the fault of weakness in the administration, and Tammany is anxious to continue the same sort of administration for another term. It is hardly likely, however, if the fusionists name the right sort of a ticket, that such a thing will happen.

Playground Mayor Takes Office.

While the politicians of the city are worried about what is best to do, the boys of Hamilton Fish park have settled the question for themselves by the election and inauguration of Nathan Kase as mayor of "Playground City." The new city within the city has all the departments of Greater New York copied, and Playground City is run on the full governmental plan. It is an idea of the park commission that if the boys are allowed to govern themselves they will do it better than if they are being bossed around by a policeman. The boys are put on their honor, and the boy officials are made responsible for the government of the park.

Will Be Other Such Cities.

Other such governments are to be organized in the playgrounds of the city if the one at Hamilton Fish park proves a success. The present Playground City is in that section of the lower East Side where tradition says that most of the bad boys come from. It is argued that if this plan of park government proves a success there it will prove successful in all parts of the city. In the few days that the scheme has been working it has shown evidence of proving a very excellent idea. The boys are more careful of their doings, since they are liable to banishment from Playground City if they do not obey orders issued by the boy mayor and his chief of police.

Will Accept What Jerome Refuses.

With the elimination of District Attorney Jerome as a candidate for the fusion nomination for mayor, Judge William J. Gaynor's name was being considered more than that of any other by the Brooklyn politicians today. He will be the first choice of the Brooklyn Republicans whenever it becomes apparent that a Democrat will be nominated for the place. In the conference next Thursday night the Brooklyn Republicans will bring forth the name of Charles A. Schieren as a candidate, but it is believed he will not be acceptable to the advocates of municipal ownership. He is now in Europe, and, so far as is known, never has given a public expression of his views on that subject.

The Gentle Reminder.

In time the people who sell embalmed meat in Pennsylvania will find out that the state food department is thoroughly in earnest when it says that such sales must stop. A stiff fine of $55 is a gentle reminder that it is not safe to fool with the law.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

COULD HAVE CLEAN FEDERAL BUILDING

An Appropriation Necessary to Wash the Face of the Pittsburgh Postoffice.

By L. W. STRAYER.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—For about $1,500 the Pittsburgh federal building could be given a bath that would restore it to all its pristine cleanliness and beauty. The accumulated smoke and soot of a decade would fade away and the beautiful granite would look as fresh as the day it came from the quarry. How long it would remain so—well, there is no need for going into that subject since the present chances of a bath are very slight. James K. Taylor, superintending architect of the treasury, says there is no money available for this purpose. Furthermore, he says if there were, he might not care to use it . . . this way.

Heretofore public buildings have always been cleaned by the sand blast system. By pneumatic pressure a blast of fine sand is squirted on the stones which drives out the dust and dirt from every tiny corner and crack and leaves the stones looking fresh and clean. But recently a workman employed by the superintendent of public buildings and grounds here in Washington discovered a mixture that will clean stone perfectly. It is a concoction of a number of chemicals and is applied to the stone with a brush or sponge and then washed off with a hose. When dry the stones are as clean and white as they were originally. It beats the sand blast for cutting away the dirt.

A Clean Treasury.

The Treasury building, the finest specimen of Grecian architecture in the country, is now being bathed by this process. Those portions which have already been cleaned shine out in striking contrast to the dirty parts, and when the job is complete the massive building will be resplendent in all its former beauty. F. M. Bruce is the name of the man who discovered the mixture by which this cleaning is being done. He has applied for a patent on it and in the meantime he is keeping the ingredients a strict secret and is mixing the preparation himself and superintending the use of it.

Bruce has taken a contract to clean the Treasury building for $1,500, furnishing the men and the mixture himself. He says this is cheap, but he is doing it for the advertisement he expects to get out of the job. The superintendent of the Treasury building, after making a comparison of the cubic feet of surface of it and the federal building in Pittsburgh, estimates that the latter could be cleaned for not exceeding $1,500.

Will It Stain Stone?

There is no question as to what the preparation made by Bruce will do. As a cleaner it is a success. But there is a question as to whether among the ingredients there is some acid that will discolor the stone as time passes. Bruce says there is not and to prove it he takes a handful of the pure mixture, rubs it between his palms and then applies it to the skin of his face. It is apparently harmless and before it is used for cleaning purposes it is diluted 75 per cent with water. This looks like a convincing argument as it seems that any chemical mixture that would not damage the skin of one's face would scarcely do any great damage to a block of granite.

But Supervising Architect Taylor is not entirely convinced of the harmlessness of the mixture. "I am afraid there is oxalic acid in it," said he, "and that it will cause the stone to turn yellow. There are cases on record where this acid has been used for cleaning buildings and with that effect. Anyway, I was not in favor of cleaning the Treasury building. It makes the structure appear new and garish and destroys all the softening effect of time. Nature treats these buildings about right and we should let them stay the way she leaves them.

No Money for Pittsburgh.

"Now, as to Pittsburgh, we have no money to use for cleaning the federal building there, and if we had, I am not sure that I would care to undertake it. I am not at all satisfied that this mixture is a good thing for bathing buildings. The sand blast is what we have used heretofore and it does no damage, if it doesn't make the stones quite so clean. It would not be necessary for a special item to be inserted in an appropriation bill in order to provide the funds for cleaning the Pittsburgh building. It could be taken out of the fund for maintenance and repairs of public buildings. There is one possibility of it being done and that is in the event of an addition being built to the present structure. Such an addition is badly needed, for the offices are crowded and require more room. If congress should appropriate the money for an addition it would be necessary to clean the old part thoroughly, otherwise it would be a blot on the landscape. In that event the old and the new could proceed to the collection of smoke and soot with equal chances."

It is probable that if sufficient influence was brought to bear, the federal building at Pittsburgh could be secured a bath. The Memphis building was cleaned recently and that at St. Louis was also given an exterior renovation. Bids have been received for cleaning the Boston building.

Cannot Serve Two Master.

The Subway Tavern, after a somewhat stormy but well advertised career of 12 months, is to come to an end Saturday night, when the new proprietor says he intends to "rip the place to pieces, tear out the 'water wagon' attachment and run the place as a straight saloon and restaurant." Such an addition is badly needed, for the offices are crowded and require more room. If congress should appropriate the money for an addition it would be necessary to clean the old part thoroughly, otherwise it would be a blot on the landscape. In that event the old and the new could proceed to the collection of smoke and soot with equal chances."

It is probable that if sufficient influence was brought to bear, the federal building at Pittsburgh could be secured a bath. The Memphis building was cleaned recently and that at St. Louis was also given an exterior renovation. Bids have been received for cleaning the Boston building.

STORIES FOUND IN THE LOBBIES

Interesting Gossip Picked Up at Pittsburgh Hotels and Stations.

Samuel Gompers, the president of the American Federation of Labor, nearly had a severe fall in the Baltimore & Ohio station last night, and pers

SAMUEL GOMPERS COMES TO TOWN

Will Be in Labor Parade and Speak on Unionism, Its Aims and Methods.

NO COAL TALK FROM HIM

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, arrived in Pittsburgh last night. He will ride in the Labor day parade today and will speak at Luna park, remaining over until tomorrow evening. The chief object of Mr. Gompers' trip here is to meet the local committee on arrangements for the federation's annual convention, to be held in Pittsburgh in November. A hall will have to be selected, hotel accommodations for delegates provided and a mass of printing arranged for.

Mr. Gompers said his speech at Luna park would, of course, treat of unionism, and he would dwell on the purposes, aims and methods of organized labor. He said that while here he would confer with representatives of labor organizations, and he believed that in future much energy would be shown in bringing into the fold of unionism "the unorganized among our fellow workmen."

Mr. Gompers was asked his opinion of the situation in the anthracite coal field. He said he might refer to the subject in his speech today, but he preferred to say nothing, as he thought President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers was the man to speak on that question.

"I have invariably made it my policy, as president of the federation," he said "not to interfere with the individual organizations. If one of our organizations were to lose a fight its leaders would have to bear the odium of defeat; they would be held responsible, no matter whose advice they had followed; consequently, whatever glory follows a successful contest should be theirs. Hence I don't meddle."

It is known that Mitchell is in the anthracite region strengthening his organization in view of the coming expiration of the agreement effected with the mine owners nearly two years ago. Mitchell is quoted as having said the miners will demand an eight-hour day.

Mr. Gompers was made aware of the fact that several federation organizations have decided not to take part in the Labor day parade and intended to hold picnics instead. Their action has displeased other union labor bodies not affiliated with the federation, for those organizations will be in the parade. Mr. Gompers, therefore, after consultation with the Labor day committee last night, practically said that all members of organizations not taking part officially in the parade would be welcomed to the ranks of the procession, room would be made for them among kindred craftsmen taking part in the parade, and he hoped many of them would participate.

The Labor day committee met Mr. Gompers at the Baltimore & Ohio station and escorted him to the Hotel Henry. The committee is composed of N. S. Glass, chairman; George W. Boyd, vice chairman; William Kelly, assistant secretary; Thomas H. Flynn and H. J. Carey.

The first four carriages in the parade will contain the officers and invited guests. In the first carriage will be Mayor Hays, Samuel Gompers, George W. Boyd and N. S. Glass; in the second will be William J. Kelly, Fred Ingersoll, Joseph G. Armstrong and Thomas B. Scandrett; the third will contain M. R. Cawley, C. C. Benton, Bishop Canevin and C. C. Douglass, and in the fourth the Rev. S. Edward Young, John Fernau, G. H. Driver and George W. Miller will ride.

JEROME DISCLAIMS BEING MAYORALTY CABINET MAKER

Can Make a Mission Chair, but Does Not Hanker After Big New York Job.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

LAKEVILLE, CONN., Sept. 3.—If any further emphasis were required for District Attorney Jerome's declaration that he will not be a candidate for mayor on the fusion or any other ticket in the coming campaign, it was furnished tonight, when, to make sure that there shall be no possible misunderstanding of his purpose or of the policy of silence that he means to pursue in the premises henceforth, he unequivocally asserted that his only desire is to succeed himself in his present office.

Clad in blue overalls, Mr. Jerome was in his machine shop, finishing off a "mission" chair, when somebody remarked:

"You'd make a good cabinet maker."

"Yes, but it isn't going to be a mayoralty chair. In Albany two years ago I said that I did not want to be mayor and would not be a candidate. I repeated that statement at the beginning of this year, again last month, and finally last night, so I think that I've said enough about the matter. I want to do away with any notion that anyone might have said that I am dickering. All that I wish, as I have said before, is to serve another term in the office of district attorney."

THROWER OF FATAL STONE CONFESSES TO THE CORONER

Nine-Year-Old Boy Admits He Was the Cause of the Death of a Passenger on a Baltimore & Ohio Train.

After searching for nearly two months officers of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad have effected the arrest of the person who threw the stone through the window of one of the trains and caused the death of Alexander P. Campbell of Charlestown, W. Va. Thomas Delehanty, chief of police of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, has been working on the case since July 16, when the stone was thrown through the train window at Thirteenth street, McKeesport. Yesterday he sent Railroad Officer Patrick Moran to arrest George Toal, aged 9, of 1306 Railroad street, McKeesport.

The officer brought the boy and his sister to Pittsburgh and took them to the office of Coroner Armstrong. The coroner and officer questioned the boy, but he denied any knowledge of the matter. After the coroner had been talking with the boy for an hour and a half, the boy finally confessed that he threw the stone at the train. Toal told the coroner he was alone at the time, but could give no reason for his action. The coroner decided the boy did not realize the seriousness of the matter, and he sent him to his home with his sister, as he is too young to lock up. The inquest into the case will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday at McKeesport.

Campbell was returning to his home in Charlestown on train No. 16, which passed Thirteenth street, McKeesport, at 10 o'clock at night. While passing the street the stone crashed through the car window and struck Campbell on the head, fracturing his skull. The train was stopped and Campbell was removed to the McKeesport hospital, where he died at 1:40 a. m. July 17. Campbell was a prominent coal and lumber dealer of Charlestown and had been in Pittsburgh on business. Last week the officials of the railroad offered a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the person who threw the stone.

Chief Delehanty could not be found last night, and it is not known whether the railroad intends to prosecute the boy.

OPIUM SMOKERS ARE FINED IN ALLEGHENY

Police Magistrates Impose Heavy Fines on Those Persons Taken in Dope Joints.

Hitting the pipe is an expensive luxury in Allegheny, if you let the police catch you at it. The fines imposed upon those guilty of this imported custom is enough to discourage anyone.

Lieut. Nicholas Kelsh and Policeman Morris Roach broke into 508 River avenue early yesterday morning, hearing sounds of battle and cries of defeat and victory. At the hearing yesterday morning the officers declared that the dope used in the River avenue house produced an instant and insatiable desire to whirl furniture through the air and to make such a racket that no one in the same block need try to sleep.

Ollie Wells, who presides at the place, was assessed $50 and costs, and Alice Miller, an inmate, paid $25 and costs. Elizabeth Collins went to jail for 30 days for her indulgence and three men visitors left $5 and costs each.

Lieut. Fred Fleck kept his squad busy during the small hours yesterday. They raided the house of Edna Stewart, 86 West Robinson street, and got the Stewart woman, four girls and 11 visitors. Edna was fined $50 and costs, the girls $10 and costs each, and the visitors were discharged.

Lucy Hopkins was next, and her house, 812 West Robinson street, was surrounded and entered. Lucy paid $50 and costs and two of the five girls were fined $10 and costs. The other three were discharged. Five visitors were let go after being cautioned about staying away from home on Saturday nights.

From this house the police squad went to the house of Olive Edwards, 60 West Robinson street. Olive went to jail for 30 days in default of the payment of a $50 fine. Three inmates were fined $10 and costs each and six visitors were discharged.

There were the usual number of drunks and disorderlies at the hearings yesterday. Magistrate Samuel Abernathey was feeling in particularly good spirits and most of the offenders got off with light fines.

Neighbors Are Critical.

Mrs. Margaret Hall of 4641 Gangwisch street was sent to the workhouse for 30 days without the option of a fine by Magistrate Kane yesterday morning. The woman had been arrested on a warrant sworn out by Mrs. Sylvia Cousins, who lives in the same house. Five neighbors appeared and told the magistrate Mrs. Hall was a nuisance.

COLOMBIA GIVES GREAT MONOPOLY IN RUBBER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Dr. Luis Cuerve Marquez who, in 1899, was secretary of the Colombian legation here, has been granted by President Reyes of Colombia, the most important rubber concession ever given by any South American country. According to the terms of the agreement reported to the state department by Mr. Snyder, American consul-general at Bogota, the sole right for the exploitation of 150,000 square miles of territory in the Amazon country is now held by Dr. Marquez and a partner. The possibilities of its future developments are described as immense.

Consul-General Snyder reports that General Reyes, who has marked out a diligent program for the industrial, mining and agricultural development of his country, has turned his attention to the hitherto slightly exploited but productive region of Colombia, watered by the Amazon and Orinoco rivers.

The concession obtained by Dr. Marquez will run for 25 years. It gives 48,000 acres in perpetual ownership of any region that may be planted or cultivated within that time and a monopoly of two great tracts, one between the Orinoco, Guaviare and Vichada rivers, an area of 45,000 square miles, the other bounded by the rivers Guarnia, Negro and Raupes, more than 100,000 square miles in extent.

The obligations of the concessionaires are to pay an export tax of $1 American gold on every 100 pounds of rubber shipped out of the country, to establish two agricultural communities within two years and to place two small steamers in service at once and of increasing the fleet by two more steamers within three years.

TWO YOUNG WOMEN DROWN RETURNING FROM FUNERAL

Had Just Attended Services Over Their Father When Boat Is Run Down.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

HUDSON, N. Y., Sept. 3.—Four young women, two of whom were returning from their father's funeral, were drowned in the Hudson river here today when the small pleasure steamer Young America was run down and sunk by the ferryboat George H. Power. They were Mary C. Bedell, Jennie L. Bedell and Sarah Brown, all of New York city, and Margaret McKay of Coxsackie.

The bodies of Mary C. Bedell and Margaret McKay, both young women 20 years old, have been recovered.

The two boats were attempting to pass in a narrow strip of water just below this city. The swift current threw them together heavily and the Young America sank almost immediately, carrying the four young women passengers to their death. There were three other persons on board the Young America, including the captain and engineer. They were rescued.

The Misses Bedell had been at Coxsackie to attend the funeral of their father and were on their way to this city to take passage back to New York.

MOORE PROMISES TO PICK FENDER

Director Returns from Michigan to Hold Another Test Tomorrow.

HE IS TIRED OF AGITATION

"I expect the fender test on Tuesday to be the last. It will not take me longer than Wednesday morning to approve a fender, if the test is all right," said Director Harry Moore yesterday, who returned home from a month's vacation spent at Petoskey, Mich.

"I don't know just where the test will be held. I will see the mayor tomorrow to arrange that. It will probably be held where the last one took place, at St. Clair street in the East End. We have the street there to ourselves. We will give every fender a fair test. While I was away I sent to Mayor Hays the names of half a dozen fenders which are selected for a test.

"One of those to be tested will be the Lev fender, which I understand is a pretty good fender and is in use in a number of cities. The inventor of the fender wants to step in front of a fast-moving car and allow his fender to pick him up. He was not allowed to do that at the last test.

"I will be mighty glad when the fender matter is disposed of. I am getting very tired of it. It has taken up at least one-third of my time, that should be given to something else besides fenders. I have no intention to delay the matter, and will select a fender at once, provided we find one at the coming test that proves to be satisfactory.

He Did Not Run Away.

"It is untrue that I ran away to avoid a mandamus by the Pittsburgh board of trade. A suit will not be necessary. I am just as anxious as the board of trade to have the matter settled for good. I cannot say positively that the test Tuesday will be the last, but I sincerely hope it will be. If a test is satisfactory and a fender is found to be satisfactory on Tuesday, I will approve a fender on Wednesday and the street car company, I hope, will put on fenders without further delay."

Director Moore was asked if he intended to permit another test of the Rhine fender. Dr. Rhine, the inventor of the fender, has been refused a trial by the street car officials and Director Moore says that the Rhine fender has already been tested and found unsatisfactory. The fender has been tested under a car, and the inventor wants another trial with the fender projecting from the front end of the car.

Moore Feared Trouble.

Director Moore said he had been in frequent communication with Mayor Hays about fenders and other municipal matters while he was in Michigan. One of these was the notice served by the attorney of the Flint Glassworkers' association protesting against the city paying policemen to guard the South Side glass plant of the Macbeth-Evans Company. The director said:

"There has been a dispute between the company and the city as to who should bear the expense of maintaining guards at the plant. Up until July the company paid the two policemen stationed there and then the company raised an objection against paying the men further, and I ordered them put on the city payroll. At that time, which was shortly before I left the city, the city was justified in keeping guards at the plant in anticipation of trouble. It is a question of the responsibility of the city for maintaining order. I don't know how the situation at the plant is now, but when I went away there was danger of trouble on account of the strike of the glassworkers."

NEW ATTACK ON WATER METERS

Property-Owners Refuse to Allow the City Plumbers to Enter Their Premises.

LARKIN SAID TO BE ABETTER

The strike of the city plumbers is not the only handicap to the installation of meters in Pittsburgh by Director Bigelow. It developed yesterday that there is an organized movement on foot to prevent the installation of meters by property owners and tenants refusing to allow city employes to enter their premises for this purpose, and a number of rebuffs of this kind have occurred since the crusade against meters was started a few weeks ago by Controller Larkin.

Controller Larkin stated on Saturday that he was "working on something that would stop" the expenditure of $600,000 by Director Bigelow for meters. It appears that Controller Larkin's plan has close relation to the opposition of certain property owners who have been encouraged not only to refuse city meter men admission to their premises, but also to employ an attorney to contest in court the right of the city to put meters in their houses and force them to measure their water supply.

Controller Larkin admitted yesterday that he knew of such a movement. It is stated the initiative in the matter has already been taken by property owners in Colwell street and in Oakland. Several instances are reported of the city employes being refused admission and they were compelled to withdraw without dispute.

The property owners who are identified with the movement claim the city officials have no authority to enter their premises and put in meters and that no legislation has been enacted by either the state legislature or the city councils granting this right.

Controller Larkin says the meter idea is very unpopular with the masses and that the people of Pittsburgh are bitterly opposed to the water which they use for domestic purposes being sold to them by measure like gas. He says he has yet to hear of a single consumer who has asked the city to place a meter in his house. The controller will not admit he is abetting the movement to shut out the meters, but it is a fact that his recent attacks have been largely responsible for the opposition which has developed.

SUBMARINE COMPANIES FIGHTING OVER A NAME

Old Holland Torpedo Boat Concern Seeks to Enjoin Its Rival.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Papers will be served Tuesday in a suit to enjoin the recently incorporated John P. Holland's Submarine Boat Company from using the name of the submarine boat inventor as part of its title.

The action was begun in the equity branch of the United States court for the district of New Jersey by the Holland Torpedo Boat Company of New York, the original concern from which the Electric Boat Company, which now manufactures submarines of the earlier Holland designs, was formed. A bill of complaint has been filed in Trenton.

According to the papers on file, the complainant corporation says it obtained December 18, 1899, from Mr. Holland, the exclusive right to the use of his submarine inventions and his name as part of its corporate title. He was elected one of the directors of the company and became its consulting engineer, holding that office and drawing $10,000 a year salary for five years.

POLICE RESTORE LOST CHILDREN

Four Little Tots Far from Home Wander Into the South Side Station House.

JOYFUL SCENES ENACTED

Lost children on the South Side, and there are many of them, find a popular resort in No. 7 police station, in South Thirteenth street. Four tots, who had wandered away from home yesterday, found their way to the police station and were restored to their frantic parents after almost the entire South Side had been scoured by hunting parties, in which hundreds of other children participated.

A girl of three years, who could not tell her name and knew nothing except that she had been trolley riding, was the first arrival. After vain questioning she was turned over to the care of the matron at the station. Hardly had the matron taken her when a little boy, not over 4, was brought into the station by two older youths. The lad was a sight to behold. He resembled very much a coal miner, his face and hands being covered with dirt. He said his name was Harry Junior. He was also turned over to the matron.

Soon two other children, brother and sister, walked into the station. The boy announced that he was looking for the "hickey" man, a somewhat common term for the patrol wagon driver. This pair was soon claimed, however, by the father. Then the mother of the 3-year-old girl came, and there was a joyful meeting. The child had previously been contented at the police station, but when she saw her mother there was a rush of tears from the little one. The mother said the little girl had been missing four hours from their home at Thirty-second street and Arlington avenue.

Close after this meeting the mother of the 4-year-old boy entered the station with an inquiry if her boy had been found by the police. When she was told that he was there her joy was intense, and it was enthusiastically shared by scores of little urchins who had followed her into the station after assisting her in a long search for the lost child. When the mother emerged from the station, carrying the lad, there was a loud cheer from the small army of boys and girls on the outside.

TWO BIG PACKET BOATS REPORTED TO BE AGROUND

The big packet steamers, Keystone State and Virginia, of the Pittsburgh & Cincinnati Packet Company, were reported from Wheeling, W. Va., late last night, to be aground on Captina bar at Powhattan. The Keystone State went to the assistance of the Virginia, when she grounded, and took off most of her cargo and then both steamers were floated and started down the river. It was later reported neither steamer had passed Clarington, and it is thought they are again in trouble. Capt. James A. Henderson last night stated he had not been notified of the steamers being in trouble, but said if they are aground it is because of low water, and he does not think they are in any danger.

GRUESOME TALE OF SPOOKS IN BEAVER COUNTY CELLAR

Gravelike Depressions and Uncanny Noises Drive Family from the Farm and Start Story of Murder—Police Will Investigate Tomorrow.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

BEAVER FALLS, PA., Sept. 3.—Investigation of an uncanny story related by Ferdinand Deal, a farmer, is expected to disclose that a cellar under his house in Chippewa township was converted into a graveyard by previous occupants. Deal came here yesterday afternoon and asked Justice of the Peace Piper to send officers out to the farm, which he has been conducting during the last year with Michael Giegler, a partner. He announced his conviction that if the officers would dig they would find one or more dead bodies in the cellar.

Deal said that he and Giegler, former residents of Pittsburgh, had purchased the farm, known as the Estep or Greenaway farm, from Rudolph Lansing, also a Pittsburgh man. Lansing worked the farm two years ago, leaving it to move back to Pittsburgh. There are 160 acres of ground.

The house on the place is a substantial building, with a cellar under the entire structure. This cellar is subdivided by thick stone walls into compartments resembling cells in a dungeon. When Deal and Giegler took their families to the farm they noticed that the earth in one of the compartments had been disturbed, but paid little attention to it. Later they noticed that the earth was gradually sinking in the shape of graves and they began to detect a peculiar odor in the cellar.

Finally the odor became intolerable and the women of the families declared that they heard strange noises in the cellar at night. After several sleepless nights both families became terror-stricken and hastily loading their belongings in their farm wagons, drove to this place. Nothing could induce them to return to the farm. Justice Piper recalls that when former owners of the farm lived on the place Austrians were employed to do the farm work. When, after several weeks, the Austrians demanded pay, the owner, with members of his family, drove the foreigners off the place, firing at them with shotguns. Several were said to have been wounded. The Austrian consul at Pittsburgh was notified and started an investigation, but the Austrians who had been driven from the farm had no money to support them while they waited for the investigation to be completed, and obtained employment elsewhere. The matter was dropped. In view of the story told by Deal, it is now believed that one or more of the Austrians was killed and buried in the cellar. Chief of Police Magee has detailed Officers Means and Kaercher to go to the farm with picks and shovels and make a thorough investigation. They will go to the farm Tuesday.

DOCTORS FIND BULLET IN PATIENT'S APPENDIX

Shot Himself Years Ago and Had Forgotten All About It Until Now.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Peculiar in its unexpected disclosure was an operation for appendicitis recently performed in St. Luke's hospital upon Robert A. Pope of Newburyport, Mass., a nephew of Col. Albert A. Pope, a bicycle manufacturer.

Young Pope, who is a Harvard undergraduate, and a candidate for this year's football team at that institution, recently presented himself to Dr. Hussey of St. Luke's.

Dr. Markoe, assisted by Dr. Hussey, examined the young man, and, diagnosing the case as appendicitis, performed an operation. To their great surprise they found, lodged in Pope's appendix, a 22-caliber bullet, to the presence of which the irritation of the appendix had undoubtedly been due.

When the operation had been successfully performed and Pope was informed of the discovery, he was greatly surprised.

"I had forgotten all about that bullet years ago," was his first remark. Thirteen years ago, it developed, while cleaning a rifle Pope accidentally shot himself, the bullet lodging in the side of his abdomen. Although he was ill for some time thereafter, he rapidly recovered and thought no more of his healed wound, believing that the bullet was not in his body. The piece of lead gave no evidence of trouble until recently, when Pope began his football training.

In the 13 years of presence in his body the bullet had worked its way gradually to the appendix, more than three inches from where it had originally lodged.

ERECTS A BARRIER.

Millvale Council Is Zealously Guarding Against Encroachments by the West Penn.

A fence was erected yesterday around the site of the old Butler plank road toll house, at Willow Grove, the ownership of which is the cause of a controversy between the West Penn railroad and the borough of Millvale. Two special officers have been kept on guard at the place since Saturday afternoon, when the railroad company tore down the old toll house and prepared to lay tracks for a siding.

Millvale council has now taken the additional precaution of erecting a fence and instructing the police officers to turn the fire hose on the railroad laborers if they attempt to go on with the work. The small lot in dispute causes a break in a siding which the railroad company has had built for some time. The rails have been laid on each side of the lot and four more rails would complete the siding.

FALLS FROM SAND FLOAT.

Anton Grobowski Is Drowned in the Allegheny River.

Anton Grobowski, a laborer on the sand float of the Iron City Sand Company in the Allegheny river at the foot of Fifth street, fell from the float Saturday night and was drowned. Mrs. Elizabeth Haigh, aged 60, a widow, dropped dead at 5:30 p. m. yesterday of heart disease. She had no near relatives and made her home with friends at 1122 Poplar alley.

Anthony Streams, aged 38, colored, was found kneeling beside his bed at his home, 503 Larimer avenue, at 11:30 p. m. Saturday. He had been suffering with consumption.

TAGGARTS WERE AT ORRVILLE YESTERDAY

Attorneys Will Endeavor to Wind Up Celebrated Case This Week.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

WOOSTER, O., Sept. 3.—Mrs. Taggart, who is being sued for divorce by Capt. Elmore Taggart, attended services this morning at St. James' Protestant Episcopal church, where she took communion. She was the target of scores of eyes. Early this afternoon, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Shields, and the latter's husband, she drove to Orrville, where friends were visited.

Major Newberry arrived this afternoon from Pittsburgh, and it is probable that he will be the first witness called when court opens in the morning at the beginning of the sixth week of the trial. Mrs. Taggart's attorneys have asked that Fannie Everly, the Pittsburgh girl, be recalled or that her testimony with reference to peeking through a keyhole and seeing Mrs. Taggart in a compromising position be stricken out.

Captain Taggart spent the day at Orrville with his parents. The fact that both the principals in the now celebrated divorce case were in the town created a rustle of excitement. It is reported that Captain Taggart is so confident of being awarded the custody of the two boys that he has already arranged to provide a home for them in Columbus. Mrs. Taggart this afternoon said that at the close of the trial she will go to Chicago and live with Surgeon and Mrs. Vose.

Attorneys on both sides stated this afternoon that the evidence will probably be all in by Tuesday noon and that the closing arguments will begin in the afternoon of that day. It is expected that Judge Eason will impose no time limit save that he will insist that the case be closed this week, as a new term of court will start on Monday, September 11.

BURGLARS ARE BOLD.

Terrorize Swissvale—Man Buys Gun to Greet Them, but Shoots Himself Before They Arrive.

Swissvale is terrorized by porch climbers and burglars. They have become so daring in their operations that residents are arming themselves. In the past 10 days many residences have been entered.

The home of Luke Burnett, a contractor, was entered through a rear door a few days ago. Burnett heard burglars working in an upper room, and going into the yard locked the door from the outside. The men heard him, and jumping from an upper window on to a porch, escaped. They were two in number and Burnett fired at them but to no avail.

A week ago last night the home of an aged couple named Groetzinger, living in Calumet street, was entered by porch climbers, but were frightened off. The couple were popularly supposed to have considerable money in the house. Robert Ruby, who resides with the Groetzingers, purchased a 32-caliber revolver the next day. Friday night while examining it he shot himself in the right hand. That night the robbers again visited the house, and while not being able to use his revolver, Ruby managed to frighten them off.

RATHER THAN DISOBLIGE MRS. FERREST IS MARRIED

Says "All Right" to Strangers Who Pop the Question and Thinks a Woman Has a Right to Marry.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—In the county jail in Paterson, N. J., Mrs. Florence Ferrest, who having admitted having four living husbands, is waiting for the courts to pass upon her case. She insists that the men she married all had wives living and that she married two of them within a half hour after meeting them because, as she termed it, "I did not want to be disobliging." Mrs. Ferrest says she is 33 years old, but looks 39 years older. To a reporter this afternoon she said:

"When I was 15 years old I married a man named Chabbeneu, a Canadian. We lived together several years and he left me. I never heard from him after that. He brought a divorce action. When three years passed and I did not hear from him I thought he was dead.

"One day I was walking in a street in Paterson when a stranger came up to me. He said: 'Let's get married.' I said 'All right,' and we went to a justice of the peace. He said his name was Charles Ebener. The next morning he was gone. Ten minutes after the ceremony he told me he had a wife living.

"I guess I was alone about two months after that. One day again in almost the same spot where I met my second husband Milton Barnes stepped up and spoke to me. His talk was so nice that I liked him. We had been talking about 10 minutes when he said suddenly: 'Let's get married.' So I said, 'All right,' just as I did before. We went to a justice of the peace, not the same one.

"Then I lived in Paterson. My third husband was at home two months and then went away and I never saw him any more. That was three years ago. I was single until a year ago last month. Then along came James Ferrest. This man I knew before. When he said he would like to get married I said 'All right.'

"I don't know anything about law. Barnes told me he had a wife living and so did Ebener, so I thought we could not have been married. I was never married in a church. The justices were the most handy. I don't know where my last husband is. I didn't have seven of them, but I guess I would if they came along and were as nice as Chabbeneu, Ebener, Barnes and Ferrest.

"I don't see that I have done so much. When I get out, if they put me in prison, and some time I meet a man who will ask me to marry him I don't suppose I will refuse. This putting me in jail I don't like. I don't see why a woman can't marry men if she wants to."

MARTIN REFUSES TO SLEEP WITH HOLT, HIS OPPONENT

Funny Story Develops in the Beaver Judicial Fight as Result of a Visit of Candidates to the Hookstown Fair.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

BEAVER, PA., Sept. 3.—The political campaign between the Republicans, with J. Rankin Martin as their judicial candidate, and the fusionists, made up of the Democrats, Citizens and Prohibitionists, with R. S. Holt at the head of their ticket, is assuming definite shape and promises to be waged vigorously in every ward and township.

Last night the Democrats in Beaver Falls formed a city committee, which will work in conjunction with the county committee. Charles Ruhe is the new city chairman. Beaver Falls is Martin's home and at the Republican primaries Martin had a four-to-one majority over Holt, then a candidate for the Republican nomination. The city committee of the Democrats was formed more effectually to carry the fight into this territory of the enemy.

The candidates on both sides are becoming active and are visiting every picnic, reunion and public rally where they can meet voters. Last week they were all at the Hookstown fair for three days, and an amusing story is now told in this connection, with Martin and Holt as the principals. Holt set to Hookstown first and, being well acquainted with the proprietor of one hotel, was given the best room. Soon after, Martin drove up. He tossed the lines to the stable boy and as he stepped out Landlord Sutherland, who did not know Martin, but guessed from his appearance that he was a man of some standing, came to the porch to welcome him.

"I would like to have a room until after the fair," said Martin. The proprietor's face fell. "I am sorry, but every room in the house is occupied," he said. Then he looked Martin over from head to foot. His eye showed approval and he said: "I have one room which is occupied by only one man. Perhaps you might consent to share it with him."

"That will be all right if the man is a gentleman," said Martin. "Yes, it will suit first rate since you have no single room."

"A gentleman!" retorted the proprietor. "Why, I guess he is. Why, it is Richard Holt, next judge of Beaver county."

Martin stayed at a farmhouse during the fair.

DISCHARGED PRINTERS TO FIGHT DISMISSAL

Have Retained Counsel and Upheaval Is Promised in Government Printery.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—All signs point to an upheaval in the government printing office as a result of the demand made by Public Printer Palmer for the resignation of Oscar J. Ricketts, foreman, and L. S. Hay, head of the job division.

Mr. Ricketts, who has been indorsed to succeed Mr. Palmer by more senators and congressmen than are ordinarily necessary to gain an ambassadorship, has retained counsel to aid him in his fight against the dismissal threatened by Mr. Palmer unless the demanded resignations are forthcoming by Tuesday.

It is learned that Mr. Palmer decided to oust Mr. Ricketts after he had seen in the New York Evening Post an article sharply criticising the administration of the government printing office. Many officials of the shop were condemned in this article, Mr. Ricketts being about the only one for whom a good word was spoken. It is said that Mr. Palmer thought that Mr. Ricketts inspired this story, which is denied by both Mr. Ricketts and the author of the dispatch.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Only two runs were scored today at the West Side grounds in 17 innings. The Cubs got one of them and the Pittsburghs scored the other, and thus the double-header was split, the score of each game being 1 to 0. The first game was a royal affair of pitchers, Wicker doing better than Phillippe, and winning in the 11th inning. The second game lasted only six innings, the Pirates getting their lone tally in the final session at the bat.

Bob Wicker was in his very best form in the opening contest. He let the men from Pennsylvania down for three safeties, only two of which were of the clean variety. He had great control at all times, allowing but one base on balls, and that did not do even a flurry of harm.

Opposed to him was Phillippe, who also put up a remarkable game, but he did not have the same control as that shown by Wicker, as he gave three bases on balls, none of which, however, resulted in anything tangible. Wicker struck out nine men, including the mighty Hans Wagner twice, and Phillippe could fan but two.

"Doc" Casey was the white-haired fellow for the Cubs. It was his sizzling three-bagger to right field and his neat slide to the plate on a drive to the infield that gave the local men their victory in the 11th inning.

Casey Whole Show.

As a matter of fact Casey was the whole thing in a batting way in this game, as he made three of the four hits given to Chicago. One of them was the result of Phillippe's failure to get over to first base quick enough to take a throw, but the other two were clean enough.

The strength of Wicker's pitching may be shown by the fact that Pittsburgh had but one man left on base in the full 11 innings. The three men that hit safely were forced or thrown out stealing, the only one left being Ritchey, who drew the only base on balls given. This came after two men were gone in the eighth inning.

Not a Pirate reached third base and only one got to second. O'Neill's first base on balls gave the Cubs their first starter in the third inning and he reached second in an out, but died there. A hit, an out and a wild pitch, sent Hoffman to third in the fourth inning. A base on balls and a hit gave them starters in the fifth and sixth innings, respectively, but nothing came.

It looked rosy in the seventh after Schulte was out. Tinker hit and was caught off first. Scooting to second he was touched out, but Wagner dropped the ball. Maloney struck out and then Brain threw low to first on Evers' chance. The latter stole second unmolested, but O'Neill did miserably to Wagner.

Howard's Throw Is Low.

Slagle lined out to Clarke in the 11th and Casey, with two strikes, mesmerized Phillippe into putting one where he likes 'em. A line drive that struck just inside the foul line back of first base resulted, and by the time Ganley had fielded it in Casey was at third. Hoffman then smashed a high bounder to Howard playing in close. He threw low to Gibson as Casey slid in, and the ball went wild.

The Pirates' best chance to score came in the second. Wagner bit and was sacrificed, but was thrown out trying to steal third. After that only three Pirates were successful in reaching first base. The score of the first game:

Leifield, a left-handed, business-like young man, who has pitched Des Moines into the Western league championship this year, was about five-sixths of the Cubs' undoing in the second game, which ended at 5 o'clock by agreement. He did not look to have anything but the ball broke prettily over the plate and the Cubs could do nothing much with him. They got but three hits, all scattered, off him, but he gave one base and hit O'Neill. He fielded his position in great style and evidently is not a man to be monkeyed with. The Cubs had lots of chances during the six innings, but with men on bases the newcomer held them in the palm of his hand.

Clarke's Hit Wins Game.

Jake Weimer opposed him and pitched well and was steady, but Fred Clarke's two-bagger down left foul line in the sixth undid his previous good work. Clarke was pushed over the plate by two infield outs. Score of the second game:

COLLEGE AND SCHOOL NEWS

Notre Dame is beginning training two weeks earlier than ever before in order to get into shape for the game with Wisconsin in October.

Chicago will have the heaviest football team in the history of the university this fall, yet it is probable that no man on the eleven will weigh 200 pounds. From present indications it seems that Eckersall will be the only man on the 1905 aggregation who will weigh less than 180 pounds. The little quarterback now ups the beam at an even 150 pounds.

Assistant Coach Fred Speik figures that the average of the team will be well up in the 180s, which will approximate closely the weight of Michigan this fall. Without Eckersall's low weight it is believed in the maroon camp that the team will average 190 pounds. According to latest reports Capt. Catlin weighs 180, De Tray 188, Bezdek 192, Gale 181, Boone 188, Badenoch 190, Shearer 196, Parry 198, Walker 196 and Eckersall 150. Meigs, the only other candidate seriously considered, weighs 200 pounds. He is not expected, however, to secure a regular place on the team.

Johnnie Sullivan, fullback and captain of the Bradley Polytechnic football eleven last season, the crack center fielder of a city league baseball team and an all round amateur athlete, will take up a course of studies at Michigan this fall. Sullivan has not stated that he would quit athletics. Phil Horton, another of Bradley's best football graduates, will attend Cornell the coming year.

Yale's football officials stand aghast at the desertion of Elmer Thompson, regarded as the greatest guard in any American preparatory school. He took his examinations for entrance to Yale in June and passed. A letter from him to Jack Cates, the Yale track team captain, early in July stated that he positively would enter college here next month.

Three days ago papers in Waterbury published reports that he already had left for Ithaca to join the Cornell eleven. As Cornell does not open for a month, the reports are doubted here.

Yale needs a new guard badly to take the place of the powerful Kinney, whose active 220 pounds are lost to the team by graduation. Tripp, the other guard, will return, but a new center rush and a companion guard must be found. Andrews, the end rush on the freshman team two years ago, is the only man talked of for center, and it looks as if either he or Shevlin would have to be called in.

The only man of much prominence in the heavyweight class who now seems assured, is Page, the St. Paul school, Garden City, guard. Much is expected of the Jones brothers of Exeter, in the lightweight line. One is a crack quarterback, the other an end, and both look likely to "make good" in their freshman year.

The football authorities of the Iowa colleges are in a lively squabble as to whether or not they will follow the freshmen exclusion rule recently adopted by the conference. The rule will weaken Drake and some of the others, which have lost many of their best players by graduation. Coach Heston of Drake, recently of Ann Arbor, is opposed to its introduction this year, while Pistine of Ames favors it. The state university, a member of the conference, threatens not to play teams in which the rule is not enforced.

Harry Bring of Allegheny will be a candidate for a backfield position on the State eleven. Moorhead will try for the place at quarterback, while the candidates for fullback are A. C. Miller of Chambersburg, Oscar Behee of Wilkesbarre and Howard Reed of Williamsport. The end candidates at present are Capt. Yeckley of Gallitzin and Earl Leathers of Mt. Eagle.

At Bucknell McKeever and Frank are two sophomores who are likely to find places at halfback and quarterback, respectively. McKeever is a 165-pound boy from Western Pennsylvania. His work early last season was first class, but an injury received in the Indian game deprived the team of his services for the rest of the season. Frank was used at quarterback in several games. His defensive work was good, but inexperience prevents him from running a team well.

George Woodruff, former coach of the University of Pennsylvania football team, originator of many plays, is going to coach the Carlisle Indian school team this fall. The combination of the versatile coach with the versatile team should prove interesting indeed to those eleven which meet the redskins this fall.

Cornell will enter upon the football season September 11 with the best prospects she has had in three or four years, for she loses but three men, ex-Capt. Lynah at quarterback, Hackstaff at left end and Smith at left tackle, by graduation, but a wealth of new material is headed for Ithaca. To add to this, she also has a number of men from last year's freshman squad to draw upon. Cook, the prominent freshman last year, who went home sick in the middle of the season, will probably step into his old place at left tackle, unless he be tried at one of the ends. Ex-Capt. Lynah's place at quarter has but one old player out for it, Newhall, one of last year's substitutes. Two freshmen of the incoming class, however, will be after the place hot foot, Van Kirk of the Ithaca High school and Ludy, from Colgate academy.

Through the efforts of 19 prominent members of the alumni of Lafayette college, March field, owned by the Athletic association, is to be greatly enlarged and entirely remodeled. The old reservoir that adjoined the former athletic field was purchased and is now being removed and the space it occupied will be added to the field.

DR. STRONG WILL BE STAR ATTRACTION

The showing made by Pittsburgh horses at the Chicago intercity matinee has attracted the attention of horsemen all over the country to the Smoky City, and the stables of the millionaire owners will be here in their full strength for the Brunots Island races next Thursday and Friday. The meeting will furnish the grandest light harness sport ever known in this locality.

C. K. G. Billings, the Cleveland owner, will jeopardize his trip to Europe to come here personally, as well as bring his great stable. "I shall allow nothing to keep me from going to Pittsburgh," said he.

The Brunots meeting will introduce the peerless Lou Dillon, 1:58½, the pride of the famous Major Delmar, 1:58¾, as well as a big string of turf stars. This may be the last opportunity to see those high exponents of extreme speed perform.

Arnold Lawson of Boston, son of Thomas W. Lawson, will be here with a stable of seven. The boy is a handsome, manly fellow and very popular. He went to school with William Thaw and will no doubt be made much of in a social way during his stay here.

The Memphis turfman, F. G. Jones, H. K. Devereaux, of Cleveland, Henry Schmulbach, of Wheeling, will also be strongly represented. President Brown of the Gentlemen's Driving club of Chicago; Secretary Hartwell of the same club; C. H. Otis, Jr., of Cleveland, and a number of owners of smaller stables will also send their flyers.

Dr. Strong, 2:06, will, of course, be the star of the local horses entered. The Brunots meet will surpass that of Chicago in that a number of flyers that were not sent to the Windy City will become factors here and lend more uncertainty to the results.

After the races at Chicago today the race horses will be shipped in a train of seven special cars. They will arrive in time for preparation for the races here. A railroad journey is also estimated as equal to a workout.

The cups won at Chicago will be exhibited at the Brunots club house. The massive gold cup won by Dr. Strong will be the center of attention. The cup won by J. A. Gleesenkamp with Evelyn Byrd, is also a beautiful one. W. A. Avey's Lady May is expected to take down the Chicago free-for-all pacing cup today. R. H. Boggs' Ozar is also a likely cup winner, and R. H. Weaver thinks he can land one with William H.

A most gratifying thing about the coming Brunots meeting is that for the first time adequate transportation is assured. Arrangements have been completed to quickly and conveniently handle the monster crowds that will attend the races. The landings at the island have been dredged so that boats can land and river craft will carry passengers across without a moment's wait who come by the surface cars.

Sam Pickering is very much displeased at the suggestion that Dr. Strong will be called King Nuf Sed. He was emphatic in disapproval that such a story had been started.

NILES WRITES TO J. LEE PLUMMER

Offers to Be Friendly If the Candidate Will Answer Long List of Questions.

MAKES SEVERE ACCUSATIONS

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

YORK, Sept. 3.—The following open letter has been sent to J. Lee Plummer, the Republican nominee for state treasurer, by H. C. Niles of York:

YORK, PA., Aug. 30, 1905.

Hon. J. Lee Plummer, Republican Nominee for State Treasurer.

Dear Sir: Because you have been nominated by the Republican convention for the office of state treasurer, I feel that I may not be taking undue liberty in venturing to address to you this communication on behalf of myself and some others who have requested me to attempt to give voice to their thoughts at this time.

For ourselves and on behalf of many other Republican voters, who we believe are similarly interested, we desire to call your attention to some facts and current impressions and ask an expression from you that may be useful to the voters in determining their action at the fall election.

There have been rumors that heretofore the state treasury has been used for partisan and personal advantage; that the selection of banks as depositaries has been dictated by persons controlling the Republican organization for political considerations and sometimes for private gain.

What we have learned about your record and associations does not fully assure us that in your hands such abuses would be impossible.

You were a member of the legislature of 1905.

Calls Up His Record.

We are informed that during that session you voted for all of what were known as the machine legislation and grab bills, and as chairman of the elections committee were active in unseating the two Democratic members—Blumle of Cameron and Ferry of Luzerne—against all evidence, and the close of the session, in order that Republican contestants without right might get the salaries and perquisites of office.

It was said that this proceeding was so rankly partisan that it was opposed and condemned even by such stalwarts as McClain and Cooper.

You were a member of the last house of representatives and are credited with "going along" with the Penrose-Durham machine.

You ranged yourself against indorsement of President Roosevelt's plans to relieve the people from the crying injustice of railroad discriminations and rebates.

You were opposed to any action for personal registration, in preparation for which the constitution had been amended, and which was urged by the governor and the best elements of the state.

You were antagonistic to the efforts to introduce into our civil service the merit system of appointment and promotion, that has done so much for the purification of politics in the federal service and in other states, and to which the Republican party of the nation is irrevocably committed.

Accused of Faithlessness.

You voted for the villainous "Puhl bill," designed to cripple societies for the prevention of vice; for the infamous "Ehrhart bills," for the protection of the "white slave traders;" and for the "Philadelphia ripper bills," the only possible purpose of which could be to rivet upon that city the chains of an organization of public plunderers.

You took a solemn oath to obey the Constitution of the commonwealth. But

The governor called your attention to your sworn duty to reapportion the state. You did nothing. The same Constitution which you had sworn to "support, obey and defend" made it your duty to "enforce by appropriate legislation" the provisions of the seventeenth article.

Not only did you do nothing to fulfill this oath-bound obligation, but you are said to have accepted and used free passes issued by lawless corporations in deliberate defiance of the eighth section of that article.

If the above stated currently reported allegations are true, you can hardly expect the vote of the citizens who are not tainted by partisan poison.

Do you really intend knowingly violate your oath as representative, what security can you give that you will not be equally false as treasurer?

If you gave all your influence as legislator for the assistance of the "criminal combination under the name of Republican," what guaranty can you give us that you will act as trustee over the contents of the state treasury to their loving care?

Willing to Be Friendly.

We desire to be entirely just to you. If these statements are incorrect and you have been misrepresented by rumor and newspaper reports, or if the assembly's minutes, that we have been informed sometimes recorded you as present and voting when you were really miles away, have been fraudulently kept in regard to all your actions by wicked persons bent on your disgrace, we will be happy to have you inform us, and we will gladly assist you in efforts to counteract the effect of so gross a libel.

It is possible that you did what you did involuntarily and under the influence of that spellbinder, hypnotism, that has led astray other not inherently bad men.

You may have really known what was going on, but were deluded to consider yourself an irresponsible agent of an irresponsible political force and that your only function was to receive and carry out instructions from your masters in conclave at the mansion on the Harrisburg river front.

You may not have known, as did none of us, the full measure of the depravity and dishonest purpose of the men who had stolen the livery of the party of Lincoln and Roosevelt for the service of the graft devil.

You are surely now informed of their baseness and of that treachery and fraud that have been so recently so clearly revealed as to stifle all pretense of denial.

Must Renounce His Friends.

If, notwithstanding your unfortunate past, you are still in fiber an honest and patriotic man, such as only would be qualified to administer the millions of the people's money, you will now repudiate all connection and sympathy with the grafters, and do it with all the more indignant vehemence because they have so grossly deceived you to your dishonor.

It will, of course, be unpleasant to admit that you were so simple-minded as not to discern the dishonesty and impropriety of the schemes in which you were made a tool; but it would be better for your lasting fame to go down to history as the dupe rather than as the accomplice of the public enemy, or the accessory after the fact of their admitted sordid crimes.

If you can take this position; if you can conscientiously affirm that you were only careless and negligent; if you can plead ignorance of the true character and wicked purposes of those you have heretofore served; your fellow-citizens, while pitying your former imbecility, will admire your manly frankness and may consider the excuse.

Asks a Speedy Answer.

If you will forever renounce all further illicit relations with Durham, forsake Penrose and all his works, read the constitution of your common wealth and pledge yourself to give the remnant of your days to fulfillment of your often taken and as often disregarded oath for its support; if you will do all this as publicly and immediately as you have sinned openly and indecently there will be joy from Dixie's line to the New York border as over one sinner that repenteth.

You may be able to give some other defense; if so, we will gladly consider it.

If you succeed in convincing your fellow-citizens either that the material allegations in regard to your record herein referred to are untrue, or that there is some valid excuse for them; or that you are entitled to be absolved on the ground of ignorance, and with contrition for your part, you now sincerely intend to take your stand on the side of the people in the fight with spoilsmen, they may conclude to confide to you the treasury of the state.

If you will favor me with a speedy answer, I shall, with your permission, give it as much publicity as this letter may receive.

Trusting that under the circumstances this letter will be considered an unwarrantable intrusion, and with respect, which I hope will be greatly increased by the temper and matter of your reply, I remain sincerely yours. HENRY C. NILES.

PITTSBURGH MEN TO BE EXAMINED

Applicants for State Police Force Must Appear Wednesday Morning.

TESTS ARE TO BE THOROUGH

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
HARRISBURG, Sept. 3.

About 100 young men from Pittsburgh and its immediate vicinity have made formal application for appointment on the state police force. All of these applicants will be examined by Dr. Francis D. Patterson of Philadelphia, before any appointments will be made. The examinations will be conducted in room No. 415 of the Postoffice building, Pittsburgh, Wednesday and continue until Friday night.

Dr. Patterson will reach Pittsburgh Tuesday night and will begin the examinations at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. He said tonight that he expected to work until 10 and 11 o'clock every night he is in Pittsburgh. Notice has been sent to each applicant there of the time he is to be examined and if he does not report at the time indicated he will be passed over and will be required to go to Philadelphia for the examination.

Those who have not filed application for examination at Pittsburgh may do so in person after Dr. Patterson reaches there and if he has time he will examine them there; otherwise they will have to go to Philadelphia to be examined. The examination is very rigid and consumes from 12 to 15 minutes for each applicant.

Dr. Patterson, who concluded the examination today of 56 applicants from Harrisburg and its vicinity, said they were a fine body of men and with few exceptions showed up well. He is pleased with the high character of those who have applied for place on the force and is confident Capt. John C. Groome, superintendent, will have no trouble in securing a capable, efficient and intelligent force.

Dr. Patterson will tomorrow go to Lewistown, where examinations will be conducted from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. From Lewistown, he will visit Johnstown, where he will examine applicants from 4:30 p. m. Monday to 1:30 p. m. Tuesday. His next stopping place will be Greensburg, where examinations will be conducted Tuesday from 4:30 p. m. to 9 p. m., after which the doctor will go to Pittsburgh. From Pittsburgh he will go to Rochester and New Castle, where examinations will be conducted all of Saturday. He will return to Philadelphia by way of the northern tier of counties, stopping at Williamsport, Wilkesbarre and Sunbury.

After Dr. Patterson has concluded his examinations, the lists will be certified to Supt. Groome, by whom the appointments will be made in time to allow the appointees to report for duty by October 1. It will require considerable time to organize and equip the force, which will hardly be in good working order before January 1 next.

OLEO DEALERS PAY FINES.

Others Accused of Selling Adulterated Food Are Heavily Assessed and Pay Up.

BELLEFONTE, PA., Sept. 3.—Five pure food cases were disposed of in the county court and in each case the defendant was found guilty, paying a fine and costs. All the cases were from Phillipsburg. Two were against George Richards and Mock & Moore, for selling oleomargarine at wholesale without a wholesaler's license. These paid fines of $100 and costs.

The other cases were against Henry Henry, W. Q. Robinson and Orin Vail, charged with selling cherries in which coal tar dye had been used to color them and benzoic acid had been used as a preservative. Henry and Robinson each paid $50 and costs. Vail protested that his cherries were free from adulteration and asked the commonwealth to have the samples analyzed. The fruit was taken to State college. A chemical analysis showed that it had been adulterated as charged and Vail paid his fine.

ASSAULTS SUPERIOR JUDGE.

Ex-Mayor of Durham, N. C., Attacks Magistrate Because of a Light Sentence Given a Negro.

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 3.—(Special.)—Durham has never had a greater sensation than that of last night's assault upon Judge Ward of the superior court by ex-Mayor Moses McGown because the judge did not impose a severer sentence upon a negro who had killed McGowan's nephew while in a disorderly part of the town after a quarrel. McGowan is in jail for contempt.

One of his counsel came here today and procured a writ of habeas corpus from Assistant Justice Walker of the supreme court, returnable here tomorrow. The entire supreme court will sit on the case and the attorney general will represent Judge Ward. It is the first assault of the kind ever made upon a North Carolina judge.

LABOR'S DAY AT THE EXPOSITION

Director Damrosch Prepares Popular Programs for the Afternoon and Evening.

NOTED SOLOISTS TO APPEAR

Labor day will be an event at the exposition. Immense crowds are expected this afternoon and evening. Labor's holiday in past years has been one of the most attractive days at the Point, and this year will be no exception. Mr. Damrosch has arranged a series of programs suitable for the tastes of every person. It was at first decided to have a Wagner afternoon and symphony night, as has always been the custom during Mr. Damrosch's engagements. Mondays during the past nine years, or since Mr. Damrosch has been playing here, were always the favored symphony nights. But owing to this being a holiday, it was thought best to make the musical programs of a more popular character. With this aim in view selections from Strauss, Flotow, Leoncavallo, Lacombe and Grieg will be played during the first part of the afternoon, while during the second part Rossini, Tschaikowsky and Saint-Saens selections will be played.

Excursions will be run today on all of the roads entering Pittsburgh. The Pittsburgh Railways Company has provided extra street car facilities to handle the crowds after the parade and during the evening.

Two Eminent Soloists.

During the afternoon concert Messrs. Barrere and Leroy will give another exhibition of their musical powers. M. Barrere, who formerly played first flute at the Colonne concerts at the opera in Paris, is a master hand. M. Leon Leroy, premier prix for solo clarinet at the Paris Conservatoire, was heard last week in a number of enchanting solos, and won many admirers. The presence of these artists has strengthened the orchestra wonderfully.

During the week a number of novelties will be introduced into the street scene in "Fighting the Flames" in Machinery hall. Over 100 supers are employed in this show during the series of productions in the afternoon and evening. Drills are being held every evening by these extras, and also by the department of 20 regularly employed firemen, so as to require more proficiency in the performances.

The thousands who visited the exposition last week remarked upon the peculiar glow which is cast over Duquesne way, which, in fact, seems to permeate the entire Point district. From Monumental hill in Allegheny, from Mt. Washington, and even from Mount Troy, this peculiar greenish or bluish tinge of light is most brilliant, the heavens being lighted up for a great distance, while a dull glow is cast over the lower part of the city.

Invention of Mayor Hewitt's Son.

The peculiar mercury vapor light is the invention of Peter Cooper Hewitt, the son of Cooper Hewitt, at one time mayor of New York. The lamp presents an entirely new departure in the field of electric lighting. Its characters are economy, efficiency, diffusion and unrivalled quality for general illumination. The lamp is constructed of a glass tube about three feet in length, having a metal wire sealed in at each end. These wires lead the current to two electrodes, one of which is of mercury. The air is exhausted from the tube to a high degree of vacuum and the tube is then sealed. To light the lamp the tube is tilted so that the mercury flows in a small stream from one electrode to another. This causes a momentary connection of the two electrodes, and as the stream breaks an arc is formed, which increases the vapor pressure. This vapor then becomes luminous. There is no escape or consumption of the vapor and the lamp will continue to operate as long as the vacuum is maintained.

The lamp produces a light which at close range is apparently a brilliant white, but viewed from a distance it has a bluish tinge. It is a well known fact that fatigue to the eyes is caused by working with an artificial light for any length of time, because of the predominance of the red rays in almost all artificial illuminations. On this account the mercury vapor lamp is the only artificial illuminant which is perfectly harmless, and is thus especially suitable for use where accurate work is done, because of the absence of red rays in its light.

Program for This Afternoon.

The program arranged for this afternoon is as follows:

Steamship Pool Breaks Up.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 3.—All the steamship lines, both British and continental, have broken away from the North Atlantic conference and are therefore free to act independently regarding passenger rates, etc. It is authoritatively stated, however, that none of the lines will take the responsibility of making changes and that everything will continue as though the conference were still in existence.

ANTI-TOXIN DEPOTS BEING ESTABLISHED BY THE STATE

State Health Commissioner Dixon Wants at Least Three in Every County Outside of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia at Once.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

HARRISBURG, Sept. 3.—"I do not know of anything in my experience that has ever given me more pleasure than that I expect to receive from the plan of the department of health in inaugurating the free distribution of anti-toxin to the poor of Pennsylvania."

This remark by Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, in discussing the work of the department and his plans to strip diphtheria of its terrors by furnishing anti-toxin to those who cannot afford to buy it, is a true index to the character of the great scientist whom Gov. Pennypacker has appointed commissioner of health.

Although Dr. Dixon announced his plan less than two weeks ago, he has already been called upon by physicians for serum for use in diphtheria cases where the patients were too poor to buy it. He has established several distributing stations and within a month he expects to have three distributing centers to each county outside of Philadelphia, where the city government has already established free distribution of anti-toxin.

"Into the homes where the diphtheria scourge used to come before we knew the power of anti-toxin to cure and to prevent this disease," continued the commissioner, "the serum is now going as one of the greatest blessings to mankind that this century has promised.

"It is the children of the poor that will reap the greatest benefit from our free distribution of anti-toxin. I have seen a bright, happy-faced child, who was the joy of its mother's heart, suddenly stricken down by diphtheria. I have seen the afflicted home from which the last ray of hope had gone out. Then I have seen the wonderful power of the anti-toxin take hold of the little patient and give the child back to its mother, fully restored to health.

"As I realize," concluded Dr. Dixon, "that the little children of the poor of Pennsylvania are to have the privilege of this serum almost the moment that diphtheria makes its appearance, and that it is to be used in every home where needed to immunize other members of the household, and especially the little ones, I feel renewed strength to go on with the big work that is before the department of health."

Dr. Dixon expects to be able to announce in a few days the plans on which the bureau of vital statistics of the department has been organized. The details of this work are in charge of Dr. Wilbur F. Batt of Philadelphia, state registrar, who has been working on them for more than a month.

RACE TRACK STABLES BURNED AT CANTON, O.

Seven Horses Perished Out of One Hundred and Twenty-Five.

CANTON, O., Sept. 3.—The stables of the Stark county race track burned to the ground late tonight. Of the 125 horses quartered there seven perished.

The fall race meet of the Canton Driving Park association opens tomorrow, and many of the best horses from Cleveland, Toledo and other cities had arrived. By midnight the fire had spent its force, and as the stables were out of the city limits, no fire protection was to be had. The men about the stables worked heroically in the flames and smoke to save their horses.

It is thought the fire was started from a lantern that had been carelessly upset. Two of the horses burned were Chanito and Mikado, entered by George Teare of Cleveland.

HEALTH OFFICER ORDERS MODERATE BELL RINGING

Long Island Town is Divided on Order Against Too Strenuous Church Sextons.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

BELLPORT, L. I., Sept. 3.—Because of an order issued on Saturday by Dr. C. W. Baker, health officer, to trustees of the Bellport Methodist church that they must be more temperate in the ringing of the church bell on Sunday mornings, this ordinarily placid community is divided into two factions, one composed of residents of New York, who have summer homes here, and the other natives. There is promise of some lively developments.

It is asserted by the natives that the New Yorkers actuated the order because they never go to church and object to having their Sunday morning slumbers disturbed, and an indignant declaration was made that the bell would continue to ring as of yore. The anti-bell faction complains that the bell has been rung five or six times a day, about half an hour each time, and that it has "got on their nerves."

In view of the fact that the bell was not rung at all this morning, the "antis" are claiming a victory, but the natives laugh and say it was silent because the rainstorm was so heavy that no services were held. Nevertheless, when the brazen summons went forth tonight it did not last as long as usual, but consisted of only a few strokes of a tentative, conciliatory kind, so that the "antis" are jubilant.

METAL BURNS WORKERS.

Explosion in the National Rolling Mill at McKeesport Injures Several Men.

Another serious accident occurred yesterday at the National rolling mill, McKeesport, where a fly wheel burst last Friday, killing five men and injuring six others.

Yesterday's accident was caused by the explosion of hot metal, and William Finnin, chief engineer of the rolling mill, is at the McKeesport hospital suffering from severe burns about the head, face and body.

Several other men, slightly injured, were sent to their homes. Details of yesterday's accident are being withheld on account of the recent accident. Finnin refused to talk at the hospital, and nothing further can be learned except that there was an explosion of hot metal, and that several men were burned. It is not thought that Finnin's injuries will prove fatal.

YOUNG MEN FEAR SUBPOENA.

Prominent Citizens of New Castle Are Said to Have Participated in an Immoral Show.

NEW CASTLE, PA., Sept. 3.—(Special.)—Prominent young men are shaking in their shoes for fear of being subpoenaed to testify in court next week at the trial of Margaret Fredonia, a colored girl arrested at the Pulaski fair on charges of participating in an immoral show. The Fredonia girl, with Cora Brown and John Beverly, were arrested and held for court after a hearing before Justice James Stitt of Pulaski, but the latter two prisoners escaped from Constable Woods Friday night while being brought here, the officer allowing them to leave the carriage to speak to a friend, when they gave him the slip.

In Estrado's pockets were found 25 pawn tickets. A detective from this city went to Philadelphia today to examine the suspect.

Mr. Aymer, who reached this city on Saturday, said that he had not been able to ascertain the extent of the robbery.

DOWNTOWN STREETS DIDN'T LOOK SO GAUDY YESTERDAY

The downtown streets of Pittsburgh were swept clean of billboards by the police early yesterday morning. The boards all bore bills advertising theatrical attractions and were placed in store doorways and against buildings. After all the boards had been placed, the patrol wagon from Central police station was sent out to gather them up, and a wagon load was secured. Supt. Wallace has been making periodical raids on the small billboards. The placing of the billboards in doorways is a violation of a city ordinance.

YOUNG ENGLISH VIOLINIST COMING

Marie Hall.

Marie Hall, the young English violinist, who will make a tour of the United States this winter, studied with Sir Edward Elgar and Withersing. Influential friends raised sufficient money for her to be sent to Prague, where she studied for nearly two years with Prof. Sevcik, accomplishing in that time the course of study with Sevcik which took his pupils six years to complete. At her first concert she received 30 recalls and Sevcik's own Amati violin as a tribute to her genius. Her debut in London was made in February, 1903, at St. James' hall with the Henry Wood orchestra. Engagements followed in every part of England, Germany and France. A few weeks ago Miss Hall gave her only public concert of the season in London, and it was given under the immediate patronage of her majesty, Queen Alexandra.

STARVING TO DEATH BECAUSE HE IS OLD

Iowa Farmer Has Abundance, but Will Not Eat and Live to Burden Others.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

OSCEOLA, IA., Sept. 3.—Starving himself to death with all sorts of tempting viands within sight and reach, is the task which Charles Armstrong, one of the wealthiest farmers in this county, has set for himself. Forty days have passed since he tasted food of any kind. Emaciated and weak, he lies in his room with all delicacies possible to obtain standing on tables within reach, his friends hoping by this means to tempt him to take nourishment. On seven different occasions he has taken a few swallows of water.

August 29, after eating a hasty dinner, Armstrong, who is a civil war veteran, suddenly announced he had eaten his last meal, and intended to starve himself to death. "I'm getting old and infirm and don't want to be a burden to anybody, even if I am able to pay my way," he said.

At first his family took the matter as a joke and asked him why he did not commit suicide in some quick way.

"If a man suicides by some act, that is a sin," he answered, "but I am committing no sin in this, for I am doing absolutely nothing to make me die. I just am doing nothing to make me live."

After several days the family became alarmed and began trying to force Armstrong to eat, but he has succeeded in preventing them from getting food into his mouth. He has made his will and all preparations for his funeral and burial have been completed under his directions.

BREAKER BOY'S ROMANCE ENDS IN DEATH IN SURF

Sweetheart Won When He Gained Fame as an Artist Drowns in France.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—The romance of Miss Helen Hunt, the talented young artist who lost her life in the surf at Bayonne, France, last month, was revealed today when her body was brought to this city.

Accompanying the girl's body came J. J. Boyle, who, from a breaker boy in the coal mines, has become an artist of the first rank, and whose marriage to Miss Hunt would have occurred this fall. Few of the friends of Miss Hunt in this city were aware that she was engaged. Mr. Boyle has won wide recognition as an artist, although the struggle upward was a most difficult one. His constitution was ruined by his work in the breakers. Confined to his bed, he began to draw pictures upon the wall, and the merit of these early efforts attracted the attention of his physician. The physician restored the boy to some degree of strength and secured his entry to the school of the Academy of Fine Arts. There he made quick advancement and won a two years' scholarship abroad.

His first recognition abroad came with the admission of a canvas from his brush to the Paris salon. It was during these early days of success that he met Miss Hunt. They became great friends, and Miss Hunt owed much of her success to the influence of Mr. Boyle.

Mr. Boyle was in the party with Miss Hunt upon the day when she was drowned. He was among the spectators on the beach when her body was brought ashore, and from that day he has appeared heartbroken.

PATROL DRAGS AUTO.

Chauffeur Refuses to Operate His Machine Without a Plate When Arrested in Highland Park.

Because he was arrested while running his automobile through Highland park without a license plate, Ray Kallmerton, said to be a chauffeur for the Standard Automobile Company, became stubborn and refused to operate the machine for Sergeant Meenen, who had arrested him.

When Kallmerton refused to drive the officer to the Frankstown avenue police station in the auto, Meenen called the patrol wagon, put the chauffeur into it, attached the machine to the wagon and then they all went to the station house. Kallmerton gave as an excuse for not driving his machine that it was out of gasoline.

Later an employe of the company went to the station and had the machine released, but the police asked a forfeit for the prisoner's release.

RAISULI'S ENEMIES WANT TO DO BATTLE

Troubles in Tangier Have Become Serious and Europeans Are Threatened.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

TANGIER, Sept. 3.—A French Jew was found murdered here Saturday night. The murderers escaped.

The powerful tribe of Angeras is seeking to force the brigand, Raisuli, to meet it in open battle, relying on their superiority in number to win. The Angeras raided three villages under Raisuli's authority, near Tangier, carrying off large herds of cattle and sheep, a portion of which was the property of Europeans. Raisuli collected a band of his followers and started in pursuit, and in several skirmishes that ensued several men on both sides were killed or wounded.

The suburbs of Tangier have been deserted by Europeans. The Angeras are seeking to capture Europeans and hold them for ransom. The Moroccan authorities are powerless, as they fear Raisuli and the Angeras.

It Points the Way.

Possibly the oddest advertisement in a rural settlement in this state is a meat market fingerboard sign surmounting a fountain and circular flowerbed in Lincoln, the little Lancaster county village which was formerly known as New Ephrata. The sign in question was devised by an ambitious wife, who endeavors to secure trade for her husband by a unique design in the little front dooryard of their home. A pool of water, on the order of a fountain, almost fills the little yard. This is surrounded by a cement coping, and the pool is well filled with delicate water plants and gold fish. Directly from the center of this pool a stout iron pipe or rod has been fixed to hold swinging circular shelves for potted plants, at a height to show well above the iron fence which encloses the yard, and at the top of the rod is the crowning attraction, a circular sign which advertises her husband's business; with a hand pointing suggestively to his meat market, situated down the street, a few doors below her home.—Philadelphia Record.

Not Money, But Carrying Capacity.

The season for worriment over money for crop moving is at hand, but this year nobody seems to be worrying. The financial situation has been so easy east and west all summer that the west does not expect to call upon the east for much ready cash in order to get the crop marketing movement under way. A matter of more worriment in the agricultural districts just now is the probability that the big crops will overtax the carrying accommodations of the railways and a freight car famine will be experienced. This is an annoyance that accompanies unusually large crop yields, but the crops always get to market, and frequently it is not to the disadvantage of the farmers to delay the marketing process somewhat.—Sioux City Journal.

Operators Are Surrendering All Leases That Are Unproductive

The lower southwest fields are completing fewer wells than at any time during the year. In a few districts there is a noticeable increase in development work, but its location is such as to scarcely bring any increase in new production. There is not a field under development that could supplant the decline in the old wells no matter how aggressive the development work. Light producers, with the usual number of dusters, would be the result. There is no locality that can be looked upon as likely to furnish wells above the size of pumpers. An odd times a good producer is encountered, but a single location from a small well, or, worse still, a duster, is more likely to result than another of the same size. Operators now would be content with light wells if the formation showed regularity and the territory was outside of the deep sand districts. There is no incentive to drill in the deep sand districts except for gas. Several of the largest companies are drilling a few wells in that district and starting others. In most instances it is solely for the purpose of protecting farms, or with a view to testing a basin preparatory to making a surrender if oil is not found in paying quantities.

During the year many thousands of acres on which rentals had been paid for many years have been surrendered rather than drill and take the chances on a hole by securing a duster or a well so light as to be unprofitable to operate. Land owners, as a rule, prefer having their property held unless the rental is high and gives them a liberal income from that source. Conservative operators are consulting their maps and looking carefully over past developments, and it must be something promising if they decide to continue paying rental. The gas companies are pursuing the same policy. A dry hole in any locality is accepted as an evidence that the boundary line of the adjoining territory would be the right course to pursue. In the search for gas it was confidently expected that some of the companies would discover new oil pools. This hope has not been realized to any great extent.

Within the week there was an exception to gas company developments. On Knob Fork, Wetzel county, the Wheeling Gas Company drilled a test on the F. A. Barnard farm into the Gordon and found a fair oil producer. The well has been in for a number of days, and is producing 40 barrels a day. The oil right on this farm is owned by J. H. McDermott, and he will drill other wells on the same property. Should the well fail as a producer in the Gordon it will be drilled down to the fourth sand and stand a chance for getting a gas pressure.

Other wells completed by the gas companies during the week were uniformly light in all districts. Two miles southeast of Ikona station, Marion county, the Philadelphia company drilled its test on the F. McElfresh farm through the deep sand, and thought it had a light gasser. It was given a shot, and after it was tested showed a capacity of more than 5,000,000 cubic feet a day.

On Gobbler's run, Wetzel county, the Kanawha Oil Company got the best producer of the week when it drilled its No. 16 on the John Mills tract into the Gordon. The first 24 hours after the drilled tapped the Gordon pay the well produced 225 barrels. The decline was rapid, but on Friday it was reported for a short time, and the production went back to 165 barrels a day. This is the best well that has been found on the big tract during the year, and opens up nothing new, being inside of defined limits.

The new Berea pool, near Wellsburg, Brooke county, is interesting. The Kenyon Oil Company drilled in its No. 1 on the Thomas Chatfield farm, and found the best producer in the pool. The well produced 50 barrels the first 24 hours, and when shot increased its production to 165 barrels. The producing stratum is very narrow, and is something after the Cairo pool kind. A few feet to either side results in a duster. The same company is drilling No. 4, and is due to the sand on the square today. There is a fair showing of new work starting in the district, considering that the producing area is small.

There has been a marked falling off in development work in the shallow sand districts. The Volk pool, in Tyler county, and the Fulton creek pool, in Calhoun county, are the most active.

The most important discovery in advance of the last named is Zinn & Chase test on the Greenwood farm, nine miles northeast of developments in Ritchie county. When this well was drilled through the Berea grit it showed but little oil, and was regarded a failure. When put to pumping it showed considerable salt water, but when the bring was shot to deepen the oil production increased, and the well is now pumping 15 barrels a day. The showing made by this well alone put to pumping is accepted as an extension to the Yellow creek field, a number of locations have been made, and in a few days work will be started on the line between the old development and the Greenwood. Three gushers. Nearly all of the wells completed for the six districts during the week come in light, and one was a total failure. Norris of the Wick pool, in Tyler county, some new work is starting on Fraser creek. Quite recently some very fair producers have been found in that locality.

Operators in Southeastern Ohio are not finding new pools, despite the fact considerable work has been completed during the past month with that end in view. The Wells well north of Steubenville, Jefferson county, Clarion Bros. completed a test on the Elson farm, and have a producer that shows a slight extending of the pool. So far the efforts to extend the pool have not been satisfactory. The same company is drilling another test on the same farm east of the northeast, and should it come in a good producer, it will extend the producing limits in that direction.

In the very shallow sand districts, in Washington, Morgan and Noble counties, there is nothing out of the ordinary. Near Harrisville, in the last-named county, there is some activity, and operators are getting some very fair wells.

Doings at Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 3.—(Special.)—Railroad men were given a surprise today when a crowd that refused to be headed off by the storm packed Philadelphia and New York stations and used up every available car that could be pressed into service on the shore lines. A throng almost as great came in yesterday for the Labor day holiday and beach front homes were crowded to capacity, while careful estimates made the population of the resort top the 200,000 mark. A steady rain set in at noon, but the overflow from crowded hotel lobbies donned raincoats and tramped the boardwalk and filled the piers. Bathing was not a popular diversion, but several thousand surf devotees insisted on their daily bath, to the great discomfort of the lifeguards, who were compelled to remain on duty in the rain.

The storm made no impression on the automobile track and a number of racers were out trying the course in preparation for the deferred racing events of the big meet tomorrow. The rain appears to have smoothed the strand in places where ridges existed yesterday and expert drivers are looking for records to be broken tomorrow.

The surf was rough and a number of thrilling rescues took place during the morning. John Rooney and Frank McGuin of Pittsburgh were among the unfortunates, but were brought to shore suffering only from severe strains.

Miss Gertrude Valmore gave a dinner to a number of young Pittsburgh friends at the Hotel Windsor last night. Among her guests were Miss Alma Meyer, Miss Katherine Keppler and Miss Anna M. Thomas. The favors were particularly pretty, a dozen big American Beauty roses being laid beside each plate.

SHARP STOCK REACTION REALLY NOT UNFAVORABLE

Disappointment Over the Meagre Response Made by the Public to Russo-Japanese Peace Agreement Is Assigned as a Cause of Slump.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—So far as the fundamentals of the situation are concerned nothing of a really unfavorable nature developed during the week in Wall street. Prices underwent a sharp reaction, and signs were not wanting at the close of the week that declines might go still further, but this process would be rather in the nature of a ratification of a condition which was disturbing.

Disappointment over the meager response made by the public to the Russo-Japanese peace agreement, and fears of monetary stringency, were the causes which professional Wall street assigned for the slump in prices. No one will be inclined to seriously dispute the fact that these features may have served to open the eyes of speculators to certain existing conditions which rendered enthusiastic upbidding of prices undesirable if not impossible. They did not create the situation, however, which influenced the decline.

Had the Portsmouth conference broken up without an agreement, the same result would in all probability have followed. Perhaps the reaction would have been a trifle more severe, but no one can pronounce upon that point. In other words, the stock market contained within itself the seeds of its own undoing. Prices had reached the highest level in the history of the country, and the banking position had weakened, as a result of the unprecedented loan expansion, reared up upon diminished cash holdings, and protected by the smallest cash reserve in many years. An important element in the market had little or no confidence in the permanence of these high prices, while experienced brokers had already become apprehensive of the monetary position.

The effort to explain the decline as due solely to the bear party is childish. The market had paved the way for its own tumble, and when it tripped the great speculative element, which had lined it into the rough places by inordinate manipulation, simply facilitated the declines with a shove. Then as if to add insult to injury, the chief spokesman of the group makes the cheerful announcement that the break is healthy, and that the market needs it. That it is a correction will be admitted, but it can scarcely be agreeable for those who blindly followed the speculative leaders on the advance, yet received no warnings of the danger, to have their wounds salved with words, now they have experienced losses. However, the efforts of the bear party in the direction of lower prices, could not have been successful unless favored by conditions, which rendered some selling desirable or imperative.

These sudden revisals of form in a speculative market mark awakenings. Even before the outcome of peace at Portsmouth there were signs that the community were awakening to the monetary situation, and were becoming apprehensive of its future. Steel prices were high and prices were apparently strong, and the banking element, particularly that branch of it which works hand in hand with the speculative party, expressed unbounded confidence in the future, and were predicting still higher prices. All the while probably they were slipping out shares. Then came the announcement of peace, and with the efforts made by some security holders to take profits the discovery was made that the public was not inclined to buy at the prevailing high range. The manufacturer and the merchant realized fully that the margin for further advance was limited, and that active business and the necessity for funds to move the crops were likely to curtail the supply of money available for speculative ventures. By such a process came an awakening, which revealed to many enthusiasts the fact that their opinions as to prices were not shared by all mankind.

Wall street in its disappointment is rather inclined to throw some of the burden of the blame for the decline on the treaty of peace between Russia and Japan itself. Nothing could be more foolish. There never yet was a good war or a bad peace. It is safe to say that the wives and the mothers of Russia and Japan are expressing no disappointment over the result of the terms of the Portsmouth agreement. Its results are not to be measured by the advance and declines engineered by either gamblers or investors in a security market. Whatever the contributing influence of the peace treaty has locally on securities, it makes for improvement of the whole industrial and financial world in the end. As it was, however, the Russo-Japanese war had certainly not depreciated securities in this market. They had reached the highest level in the country's history during the pendency of the contest. If prices were not at so high a range, had they been depressed by war, or if credit was not so heavily burdened, they might have advanced with the declaration of peace. As it was, however, other things had to be taken into consideration.

As to the money market at the present time, it is rather curious that the grounds upon which its future firmness are now predicted are very largely a set of conditions which Wall street has regarded as the most favorable factors for higher prices. To be sure, there has been an excessive burdening of credit due to the marking up of securities, to unprecedented heights. Still, these were in many instances justified by bankers and speculators by the magnificent crop prospects and by the promise of sustained and expanding agricultural and commercial activity. It takes funds for the farmer to move his crops to the distributing markets; it requires the abundant use of capital for the manufacturer and the merchant to purchase his materials, work them through their processes and market them with the consumer. If anything was more certain than another, it was that if the country was to reap the benefit of its great crops and its quickened commercial life, an active employment of capital would be necessary.

It is true that the money market as yet has made no sign of acute stringency, but unless bank figures are falsified and all experience fails, the situation, as disclosed by the banking returns, renders it impossible for an active and advancing market to continue coincident with the increasing agricultural and commercial demand for money.

With Russian and Japanese loans and with conditions altered by the peace, the present and immediate market has little to do.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—(Special Cable.)—For the first time in many months London markets are without the domination of events in the far east, and financial writers, so long used to speculation as to the outcome of this or that move on the part of the adversaries, are now busy inventing explanations why their predictions have not come true in London as well.

Conclusion of peace naturally gave a great stimulus to business in the stock exchange and money market, but it has not been maintained and blame is thrown primarily on New York on the decline there, due to fears of tear money and the recent bear raid.

Then, too, another factor which has proved a check to improvement has been the sugar crisis in France, which caused a great deal of forced selling here on French account. That this check will prove temporary is the common belief of those who best read the signs.

In spite of it there has been an advance in gilt-edged securities as well as in both Russian and Japanese bonds. In Russians the rise has been far the greater, as much as 5½ per cent in the 4s within 48 hours after the announcement of peace. The greatest rise recorded in Japanese bonds was 1½ in the 4½ per cents. The explanation vouchsafed is that Russian credit has more to gain by the conclusion of the war than that of Japan. The rise in consols has been 7 1-16 over the preceding week. Annuities advanced ¼ to 1-6 per cent.

Home rails have benefited by a renewal of interest in stocks consequent upon the announcement of peace and good traffic returns have helped their upward movement. The accident on the Great Eastern on Friday sent its stocks down 1¼. It is true, but the statist looks for a steady general improvement in this department, holding that peace will stimulate trade all over the world, increasing railway earnings to a point that will justify an advance in prices.

Canadian rails by moving in a contrary direction have broken with tradition and just now appear quite attractive to speculators here.

The Kaffir circus had a full share of excitement on the morning peace news was received. Considerable reaction has since occurred, however, as, owing to the failures resulting from the sugar collapse, Paris came in a heavy seller. Some uneasiness exists on account of reports of desertions among the Chinese on the Rand, but notwithstanding the setback, there is a very general advance in prices compared with the previous week.

The Statist, discussing further loans on the part of the two late adversaries, says: "Russia will, it is understood, raise a large loan immediately after peace has been signed. In good quarters the belief is that the loan will be large and that it will be an international loan, largely subscribed for on the continent, fairly well subscribed for in New York and moderately in this country. With respect to Japan, however, no immediate loan is expected."

Tries Suicide With Winchester.

WAYNESBURG, PA., Sept. 3.—James Cunningham, employed in the shops of the Waynesburg & Washington Railroad Company here, attempted suicide this morning. He was intoxicated and after driving his wife and family from their home, went into the cellar and placing the muzzle of a 38-caliber Winchester rifle against his breast, pushed the trigger with a cane. The bullet entered near the heart and passed entirely through his body, lodging in the wall. He is still living.

NEW CASTLE, PA., Sept. 3.—(Special.)—The Hon. Walter S. Reynolds, one of Lawrence county's representatives in the state legislature, will deliver an address at the annual reunion of the Sixteenth Pennsylvania volunteer regiment which will be held at Warren, Pa., September 5. The Sixteenth served in the Spanish-American war.

Vatican Denies Thefts.

ROME, Sept. 3.—A high vatican authority states that reports circulated to the effect that there have been great thefts of vatican treasures are absolutely untrue. A few artistically bound albums were stolen by a gendarme, but this theft was not looked upon seriously and the thief will not be prosecuted.

Lawrence County's Criminal List.

NEW CASTLE, PA., Sept. 3.—(Special.)—District Attorney J. V. Cunningham will present 70 criminal indictments to the September term of the grand jury which will meet here tomorrow afternoon.

THE THREE RIVERS

The stage of water at Davis Island dam at 9 o'clock last night was 3 feet and stationary.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 3.—(Special.)—At 8 p. m. today the Ohio river at Cincinnati was 10 feet 9 inches and falling. Today's departures of packets from the port of Cincinnati were: Courier, Marysville, and Indiana, for Louisville.

STEUBENVILLE—River 3 feet 4 inches and falling. Up—Sam A. Coners, 2:30 p. m.; Kanawha, 8 p. m.

WARREN—River, low water mark.

GALLIPOLIS—River 6 feet 5 inches and rising.

PT. PLEASANT—River 4 feet 10 inches and rising. Up—Greenwood. Down—Greenland.

OIL CITY—River 6 feet 6 inches and stationary.

GREENSBORO—River 6 feet 5 inches and falling. Woodward down Monday; Columbia up.

LOUISVILLE—River rising. In canal, 4.9 feet; on falls, 2.7 feet; below locks, 9.7 feet.

PARKERSBURG—River 7 feet and falling. The Virginia is due for Cincinnati tonight.

Because of the extremely low water there was no movement of boats in the local rivers yesterday. The Jno. Moren left Marietta on Saturday night with a big tow of empties, but is tied up somewhere now, and will not get into Pittsburgh until there is more water.

FLOUR GOES DOWN AND SUGAR GROWS WEAKER

Heavy Demand for Canning Purposes Sustains Price of Refined Article.

Aside from a further decline of 10 cents in the price of flour, there was little doing of note in the local markets last week. Flour is in a weak condition and is gradually going down. Even at present quotations it is being shaded considerably. Sugar is also weak. The condition of raw sugar is such that the refined article is unable to gather any strength, and, while no further decline is predicted, it is known that as that is holding the price up is the heavy demand on account of fine canning season. The purchases for this have about reached their limit and will now probably decline. This will leave the market in a weaker condition than now and may result in a further drop.

Green goods were firm all week and a heavy business was transacted. Butter held steady and cheese made a sharp advance. Eggs are firm at quotations and strictly fresh eggs are bringing a premium.

HAY AND GRAIN.

Receipts Saturday were: Pennsylvania lines, 18 cars oats, 17 cars hay, 4 cars straw, 2 cars rye; Baltimore & Ohio, 1 car corn, 3 cars hay; Lake Erie, 7 cars hay, 1 car straw.

The week just closed has been very active in the hay line. Receipts were not equal to demand and all arrivals, especially the better grades, were picked up at top prices. The oats market was not so active, the receipts being heavy and many cars of a grade lower than the trade wanted. This made it difficult to dispose of the goods, except at a concession on price. No. 2 white oats are easily placed, but lower grades are not. Receipts of corn have not been excessive, but demand is limited. Shelled corn is as dull as ear. Oats being so much cheaper to feed than ear corn, the demand for that commodity is limited and prices are being reduced in order to make sales. Middlings are in better demand, while bran drags a little. Straw is about holding steady.

WHEAT CLOSES HIGHER IN CHICAGO MARKET

Corn Also Advanced With Oats and Provisions Practically Unchanged.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—The wheat market was firm the entire session. At the opening the December delivery was a shade to ⅝c higher at 81¾@81¾c. Throughout the spring wheat belt additional rain had fallen during the night. This fact largely accounted for the firm undertone that prevailed in the pit. In addition some apprehension was caused by low temperatures throughout the Canadian northwest. Much wheat in that section was reported as still in a condition liable to considerable damage by frost. Another bullish factor was a report from an English crop statistician telling of fair inquiry for American wheat. Demand was moderately active all the day, but offerings were light. Late in the session the market gained fresh strength from an announcement that Buffalo millers were buying hard wheat here. Shorts covering carried December up to 81¾@81¾c. The market closed firm, with December at 81¾@81¾c. Primary receipts were liberal arrivals at all points today, being 1,013,000 bushels, compared with 772,000 bushels a year ago. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 462 cars, against 240 cars last week and 294 cars a year ago.

Threatened frost for the more northerly section of the corn belt caused a firm tone in the corn market. A report of five boatloads of corn taken for export helped to stimulate demand. The volume of trading, however, was small. The market closed at the highest point of the day. December opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 47@47⅛c, sold between 46¾ and 47¾c, and closed at 47¾c. Local receipts were 814 cars, with 241 of contract grade.

Firmness of other grains held the oats market steady, notwithstanding moderate profit-taking in the September option. December opened a shade higher at 26⅜c, sold off to 26¼c and closed at 26⅜c. Local receipts were 285 cars.

A 5c decline in the price of live hogs had a weakening influence on the provision market early in the session. Later a fair demand from shorts caused a steadier tone. An estimated decrease in the world's stock of lard was an additional bullish factor. At the close October pork was up 5c at $15 22½. Lard was off 2½c at $8 02½. Ribs were unchanged at $8 30.

Estimated receipts for Monday: Wheat, 35 cars; corn, 425 cars; oats, 279 cars; hogs, 29,000 head.

FRICTION IN TWO FAMILIES LEADS TO THE POLICE COURT

Frank Shebasski, who hit his wife over the head with an iron pot during an altercation at their South Side home Saturday night, was not tried yesterday morning. Mrs. Shebasski, while not seriously hurt, was unable to be taken from the South Side hospital to the station house to appear against her husband, and his case was held over until she can appear. William McKinley and his wife, Annie, who were having a lively argument at their home Saturday night, were both sent to jail for 10 days. This is the second offense of a similar character for which the couple has been cited.

TELLS MEANING OF THE TREATY

Dr. E. R. Donehoo Says the Lord's Will Dominated the Action of Peace Envoys.

THUS FAR AND NO FARTHER!

"The Treaty of Peace and Its Meaning" was the sermon subject of the Rev. Dr. E. R. Donehoo in the West End Presbyterian church yesterday morning. The church, which had been closed for a month, has been repaired and renovated and presented a pleasing appearance. Dr. Donehoo took for his text Isaiah, 11:4, and said in part:

What a blessed consummation, when the sound of war will no more be heard the wide world around. I pity the heart that was not stirred with joy at the good news which was flashed around the globe on last Wednesday, that the representatives of the two warring nations had agreed upon satisfactory terms of peace. Any man who regrets the conclusion of this bloody and wholly unnecessary war is deserving of reprobation. But why make such an ado over the matter, since wars have been waged and ended year after year from the very beginning of history? I will tell you why.

Wars, as a rule, between nations have been prolonged until one or the other was utterly exhausted and forced to sue for peace. In this conflict neither party admitted defeat. Just at the juncture when Japan was preparing to push forward her victorious legions and Russia was awakening to the fact that she was face to face with a foe vastly more powerful than she had at all reckoned upon when she threw down the gage of battle, our wide-awake president interposed with conciliatory counsels, and in response representatives of the two nations hurried across the Atlantic in the hope of bringing about peace. Down at Portsmouth, within hearing of the breakers, and not remote from the spot on which the Pilgrim Fathers landed, these envoys sat in council, and by the helpful advice of our Christian president were enabled to reach a satisfactory conclusion.

To whom shall the glory be given for the peaceful solution of the questions which engrossed their attention, and which brought to an end this terribly destructive war? Was it Witte, that shrewd Russian statesman, that brought these terms of peace about? Many are ready to accord to him this great honor. Was it the representatives of Japan? Some insist that they were the ones who, by their wisdom and broad-mindedness, at the very moment when all indications pointed to their complete triumph over their antagonists, brought this peace about. Or was it our good President Roosevelt, through whose judicious counsels this conference seemed to be guided from beginning to end? Multitudes feel that he, above all others, is the one man who is entitled to the credit for ending this cruel war upon honorable terms. All of these are undoubtedly entitled to a full meed of praise for the good work they have done. But, after all has been said for each one of these, back of one and all of them, standing within the shadow and keeping watch over his own, was the Lord God Almighty. He that had said to that ocean which reared and pounded close by them while they deliberated, vainly striving to pass its appointed bounds, "Thus far shalt thou come and no farther," laid his hand upon the two warring nations and, with an air of command that none dare ever resist, declared, "Thus far and no further." And every sword was sheathed and every foeman was turned into a brother to him against whom he was warring.

What does this treaty, as thus brought about, mean? It means that we are nearing the time when, instead of bloody wars which settle nothing, peaceful methods are to prevail, in which the clash of arms and the groans of the dying and the sighs of the widow and orphan are to perform no part, but instead, as the nations move onward and upward to their noble destinies, peaceful methods are to be employed for the settling of national disputes. May God hasten that happy period when wars shall cease to the ends of the earth, and let all intelligent creatures join in a loud amen.

SAYS CHURCH IS NOT SPONSOR FOR CAPITAL

The Rev. Dr. A. Greene Declares That Christian Citizens Should Show Interest in Labor Problems.

"The Church a Labor Organization," was the sermon theme of the Rev. D. A. Greene in the pulpit of the Manchester Presbyterian church, Franklin and Market streets, Allegheny, yesterday morning. The pastor took for his text Matt. xx:1-16, and reviewing the relationship of the church with labor, said in part:

The observance of Labor day tomorrow will remind the thoughtful of some of the serious problems which belong in the realm of industry. Every good citizen, whether he toil with head and hand, is interested in the righteous solution of these questions. The Christian citizen should be especially concerned.

The church is vitally concerned for the spiritual, social and industrial welfare of each individual. A large class of toilers seem not to know this. They think the church is in sympathy with capital rather than labor. Because the church condemns the deeds of certain labor leaders who use their influence and positions to extort money, and the acts of those who murder and destroy, the wicked demagogues would have the laboring man believe the church favors capital as against labor.

No. Christ, the head of the church, said neither the eye (capital) nor the hand (labor) should ask: What need have I of thee? As a Christian president has brought about peace between two nations, so the Christian church should rend its services to bring peace between two powers that should not be arrayed but allied.

The church is in a sense a labor organization. We are invited into the service of the Lord that we may be workers in His vineyard; not spectators or idlers, but industrious laborers. Let not one word of the Lord put before your minds as your motto: "Go out and constrain them to come in that my house may be filled." We have labored together and the Lord has blessed our effort. Still there is room. This year let our text be: "Go work as laborers together with Christ." The world is perishing for the lack of unanimity and Christian effort. Last year with but seemingly little effort 140 persons were added to our numbers. Let us be zealous, faithful workers together with Christ, that His kingdom shall be greatly extended. Obey the command: "Go ye also into the vineyard, and whatsoever is right I will give you."

CHURCH IS RULED BY WORKINGMEN

Pastor Says It Is Supported Chiefly by the Toilers and Their Families.

DIGNITY LABOR DESERVES

The Rev. U. S. Greves spoke from the pulpit of the Forty-third Street Presbyterian church last evening on "The Church and the Workingman." He took for his text Eph. iv:28, "Let him labor, working with his hands the thing that is good," and quoted the history on the dignity that should be accorded labor. He said in part:

These are the words of a workingman to the members of the church of which he was pastor, and were prescribed by him as an antidote to dishonesty on the one hand, and as a motive to charitable giving on the other. They are a fair resume of the teaching of the Bible concerning the dignity and the duty of labor. Whatever the relation of the church to the labor problem, there can be no question of what the Bible means it to be. The only question is whether the church squares with the teaching of the Bible.

For the most part a fair-minded critic of the church must answer this question affirmatively. If it does not, the burden of failure must rest largely upon the workingman himself. Who are the people that make up the 29,000,000 of communicants in this country? Manifestly but a small part of them can be rich. Without question the bulk of the church membership must be classed as workingmen and their families. A minister of the Presbyterian church has learned by personal investigation that many of the labor leaders of this country are active church members. If the church is not doing all that it ought to for the workingman, he himself must bear a large part of the responsibility for failure.

But the church has not failed. The workingman owes practically to the church the emancipation of labor from slavery and oppression. In the Roman empire at the time of Christ the world's work was done by slaves. It was he who set the laborers free, and taught the world that no man was a man, whatever the work that soiled or hardened his hands. It is not too much to say that every great reform in the life of the workingman since then has come through the church. It is the church today that is making it possible for a poor man's son to be as well educated as the rich, and that has opened the path for the laboring man of today to become the capitalist of tomorrow.

The church is not owned nor ruled nor even supported by the rich. It is not responsible for the present industrial system, nor any system, and cannot be. It deals with men as individuals and families, not with men as a class. It desires only that all men, rich or poor, shall become good men, regardless of their wealth or lack of it. The one business of the church is to preach the gospel of freedom from sin.

No honest man will contend that the church has done all that it ought, or never done aught that it ought not, but it is true, now as never before, that the church desires the workingman and is striving for it. And this is so because the church is composed principally of workingmen.

Dedicates New Hymnal.

The newly adopted hymnal of the Methodist Episcopal church was used for the first time by many local congregations yesterday. In most instances special pulpit references were made to the new book, while in the Mary S. Brown Memorial church, Hazelwood, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. C. V. Wilson, dedicated the book in a special sermon on "Hymns That Help."

SUNDAY GAZETTE OFFERS GOOD THINGS IN PLENTY

A Menu of News, Humor and Fiction Is Appetizingly Spiced and Tastefully Served.

There was interest, variety and humor enough, properly balanced, in the pages of the great Sunday Gazette of yesterday to please the most fastidious and afford profitable as well as entertaining reading to the great army which The Gazette is honored in having as patrons.

Buster Brown and his aggregation of fun-makers were in their element. The Home Journal section was rife with good advice and profitable suggestions for the housewife and society aspirant, while the fiction department offered a literary menu that was easily digested and appetizingly spiced.

From a news standpoint yesterday's issue of The Gazette strengthened its position in the forward line of the march of time. It told of the cholera plague which is threatening all Europe and how France is preparing to meet the scourge; government printing office employes declare to the president they were discharged because of spite; Pittsburgh gets a $15,000,000 order for steel from England; the consulting board of engineers is to visit Panama canal site; Italians threatened to destroy a yellow fever hospital in Louisiana and militia is asked for; a maniac who terrorized Ohio towns killed himself; Indiana congressmen declared themselves on the tariff issue; big insurance companies are asked to present their list of securities to the New York state investigation board; Philadelphia police is devoting itself to political canvass.

Butler county politicians are active at social gatherings; Berry to make six speeches for the Prohibitionists; the Citizens movement in Westmoreland county dies of exhaustion; Controller Larkin has a scheme to prevent Director Bigelow from spending $800,000 for water meters; trunk lines of the Philadelphia Company to the West Virginia gas fields add 75,000,000 cubic feet to the daily capacity; the steel framework of Carnegie Institute is complete; Detective Frank Joy is sentenced on a conspiracy charge and later is released on an appeal. Capt. James Wilson is sentenced to six months in workhouse on graft charges and is released awaiting appeal.

John Fulton, who was strangely missing for 30 years, as was exclusively told by The Gazette, appeared in court, but must identify himself; Judge Shafer heard many applications for transfer of liquor licenses and will hand down decisions today; Select Councilman Peter Hermes is sued for $20,000 damages for the antics of his automobile; circumstances surrounding Ryan murder mystery which police did not investigate; President Zimmerman of the Great Central route plans a rival for Pittsburgh steel industry and coal and ore roads; New York stocks rallied and closed firm and higher; local securities were dull but steady; wheat and corn higher.

Pirates make it 11 straight victories by defeating St. Louis; Hans Wagner is only three points behind Seymour for league batting honors; Sysonby adds Great Republic stakes to long list of turf victories; Athletics still hold the lead in the American ball league.

SONS AND DAUGHTERS HOLD TOWNSHIP REUNION

YOUNGSTOWN O., Sept. 3.—(Special.)—The fifth annual reunion of the Sons and Daughters of Beaver township was held yesterday afternoon in Ruhlman's grove, North Lima. Resolutions on the death of the president, Dr. H. H. Hawn, were adopted. The officers for the coming year include: President, Ephraim Shallenberger; vice president, Merrill Grover; secretary, E. Meanter; treasurer, John Yoder.

HOLD SERVICE FOR LABOR MEN

Large Meeting in Schenley Park Is Addressed by the Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young.

LAUDS THE PRESIDENT

In accord with a request sent out to Presbyterian clergymen the country over by the department of church and labor of that denomination, many local Presbyterian ministers yesterday devoted at least one of their sermons to a discussion of labor from various standpoints.

In Schenley park last evening an outdoor service was held in front of the band stand, which was attended by a large congregation, among which were representatives from many local labor organizations. The Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young presided and delivered an address, while special music was furnished by the Braddock Library band. Congregational singing was led by Evangelist Robert S. Young.

Dr. Young preached on "The Workingman and Universal Peace," and took for his text St. John, vi:27: "Labor not for the meat which perisheth; but for the meat which endureth everlasting life." He said in part:

More than all other men, the workingman should hail this last great step toward universal peace. Wherever else the blows of war may fall, in their last deadliest thrust they smite the common laborer. He it is who carries a soldier on his back in every European nation. He it was, in nine cases out of ten, who went to the war in America. He it is whose family suffers most inconsolably when the message arrives that says papa will come back to his loved ones no more. I do not know whether such a campaign would be compatible with the present constitutions of labor unions, but I believe that a world federation of labor unions to war against war would be the aptest of all actions growing out of the Portsmouth conference. What does the ending of this Russo-Japanese conflict mean?

Does some soulless money-bags sort of fellow mention first its beneficial result to the world's trade? Hush! Yonder wait a little group—wife and children—to whom the treaty means that papa is coming home or the son will gladden the mother's arms again. They no longer fear that each telegram or letter will announce his death. They laugh and cry and sing till he comes home, and home seems heaven, and there are waiting groups like these enough to join hands and stretch from Russia to Pittsburgh, and wherever these groups are not laboring people, they stand upon the shoulders of laboring people. Verily, "Peace on earth, good will to men" never had a greater lifting than during the past week.

The dream of the Galilean—such was it long accounted—has gone into world politics, to be real there, let us hope, forever. Slowly, too, yet surely the armaments of the nations begin to heed his command, "Put up again thy sword into its place."

Amongst the first statesmen of the new era the first splendid name is Theodore Roosevelt. Glorious as his career has been hitherto, might he not wisely, if the need were, cancel all the rest for the glory of this one, wherein one-third of the human race, China being included, were involved intimately? Might we not advantageously transfer the principle from great affairs to the comparatively small, and make way speedily with the strifes that mar our little lives, the feuds betwixt neighbors, between old families, between members of the same family or church?

Peace between toilers, peace between producers and consumers, peace between capital and labor, peace between all branches of the human family—this is wealth and health and happiness, and "Blessed are the peacemakers."

FOUR PASTORS SAY GOODBY.

Quartet of Methodist Protestant Ministers Preach Farewell Sermons.

Four local Methodist Protestant clergymen preached their farewell sermons yesterday. The Rev. J. C. Broomfield said goodby to the Fourth congregation, Mayflower street, to accept a call to Fairmont, W. Va. The Rev. J. A. Barnes preached for the last time in the Second church, Fifth avenue, and is considering a call to St. Marys, W. Va.

The Rev. F. P. Hubinell addressed the South Side congregation for the last time and the Rev. F. N. Foster closed his pastorate in the Knoxville church, to go to the Fourth congregation, which Mr. Broomfield left.

Colored Baptists Rally.

Colored Baptists of the Monongahela valley held a rally in Mt. Zion church, Braddock, yesterday, with services morning, afternoon and evening. The Rev. Horace Pawling of Pittsburgh preached in the morning, the Rev. T. E. West of Monongahela spoke in the afternoon and the Rev. F. G. Brookins of Pittsburgh delivered the sermon in the evening.

AUTUMNAL HUNDREDS VISIT HIGHLAND PARK

Highland park contained yesterday the greatest crowd of visitors since the heat of summer deterred people from going to the zoo. Several thousand persons inspected the zoological garden, wandered over the park and sat about on the benches and on the grass.

This is usually the time of year when the zoo attendance is largest, for in the heat of summer the buildings are not the pleasantest place to spend an afternoon. Besides, vacation time is over, families have returned from the country and the seashore and the children naturally hasten to see the four-footed curiosities from which they have been separated so long.

There was a great contrast between Schenley and Highland parks, for while the latter pleasure ground was filled with visitors, not more than a corporal's guard took in Schenley, and of these very few visited the conservatory. Whole buildings are taken up with the chrysanthemum plants, but they are at the most uninteresting stage of growth just now and nobody cares to see them.

The trolley parks were well attended. At Calhoun William Josh Daly's New York minstrels appeared. Two performances were given, at 3 and 8 o'clock. The evening entertainment was rushed through in order to allow the company to catch a train for New York. At Oakwood park the concerts were given by Roccreto's Concert band. The great Heywood, the half man and half woman character vocalist, and Merritt and Rosella, singing comedians, appeared. At Southern park were the Homestead Carnegie library band. Al Waltz, the champion roller skater of the world, and Waldorf and Mendez, acrobatic comedians, did stunts.

LESSONS THAT PEACE BRINGS TO THE WORLD

Dr. E. L. Eaton Tells of Revelations Disclosed by Recent Eastern War.

Under the sermon title of "Peace," the Rev. Dr. E. L. Eaton, pastor of the North Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, Allegheny, drew moral lessons from the successful conclusion of the Japanese-Russian war and referred to the unsubstantial "yellow peril bogy." He said in part:

We rejoice that peace has again returned to the earth. War between Japan and Russia has passed away. It taught both them and us some great lessons. This war has disillusioned the world. Yesterday Russia was a military scarecrow. Today she is practically prostrate at the feet of Japan. Yesterday she had a secret ambition to rule the north, the east, and, finally, the whole world. The immense commercialist has suddenly awakened from the shattered dream. So has the rest of the world, and is henceforth prepared to stand across her path. Japan's meteoric rise has been as startling as Russia's downfall has been dramatic. From almost obscurity to a front rank among the military and naval powers of the world is startling. And Japan's modest and self-renunciating way of proposing terms of peace has most effectually let the sawdust out of the "yellow peril" bogy.

Perhaps the least of all the causes of joy is that of the material gain; but this must be catalogued. Peace creates wealth and material greatness; war destroys both. Wealth and material things have their influence upon man's intellectual and moral life. This means a larger life and civilization to both Russia and Japan.

What moral lessons this war has taught! A nation's true greatness does not depend upon its size. Israel was small; so was Greece; so was England; so is Switzerland; so is Japan; but each has exerted mighty moral and intellectual influences upon mankind. Russia and China are great in numbers and territory, but what does mankind owe them? The interest manifested in this peace shows us the growth of the sentiment for peace throughout the world. It has created it as and wonderful universal. Most of all, the moral lesson of the council table. Nothing was agreed upon but that which was believed to be morally right. Both parties fastened it to the moral rules of the world. Neither party dared to recede the field without the moral indorsement of mankind. The world noticed.

What a lesson of patriotism comes upon the wings of this peace! A great nation has been humiliated in the eyes of the world because in the breast of its people patriotism was dead. As in the old days of Rome's decline and downfall, men no longer loved the empire. So with Russia. The people of Japan have correspondingly astonished the world by the devotion to their country. Let us learn the lesson. People will fight for home, but not for a boarding house. They will sacrifice for their country if it is their own, but not for a despotism that belongs to another. America's patriotic pulse beats a little stronger at the good sense and hearty zeal of our great president, and at the high station which our country has reached among the nations of the earth. A century ago every monarchy on earth would have hailed our downfall. Today we are among the leading moral and political influences.

We rejoice in this peace because of the political advantages which it will bring to Russia. The war has exposed the weakness and infirmity of the empire. Peace now means regeneration and probably revolution. The American revolution brought constitutional freedom from the north pole to the south pole on this continent. The French revolution of '89 broke the power to despotism in that unhappy country. The French revolution of '48 brought constitutional liberty to every country in Europe except Turkey and Russia. These victories of Japan mean that the enslaved millions of Russia must rise to political freedom and have a voice in a constitutional government.

The philanthropist and the Christian rejoice together, for this peace means another blow to ignorance, superstition and bigotry. It marks the end of the old order of things. It is perhaps not the end of heathenism in Japan, Christianity and the western civilization shall now dominate Asia and the far east exactly as it now dominates Europe and America. The unity of the human race is coming clearer to view, and the enlightenment and Christianization of the entire world draweth nigh.
